EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE outlook for Democracy in Pennsylvania this year is very Black.

BLAINE is about to make a speech. Democrats should hold their ears.

Two Cincinnati editors, Halstead and McLean, are arranging for a duel, to relieve the summer monotony.

EX-PRES. ARTHUR is reported as much improved. His weight has increased from 130 to 170 pounds during his stay at New London, Conn.

THE Queen's speeches to her Parliament are examples of brevity. In that particular American Presidents do not imitate English royalty.

MANY of the cranks are sailing through the Niagara Whirlpool rapids, but Charley Wolf, of Union county, has not yet started to Niagara to perform that feat.

THERE is a demand in New York for the coinage of half cents. Evidently, New Yorkers want a coin that they can contribute to the Grant Monument Fund.

IT is said that Samuel J. Tilden, Jr., proposes to contest the will of his uncle, on the grounds that its provisions violate an old statue of the state of New York which requires a testator to divide half his fortune with his relatives before indulging in public bequests.

In the desire to interfere with every other nation's business, France is now accusing the Australian colonies of wishing to establish a kind of Monroe doctrine in Australasia. The Australian colonies are wise in trying to establish such a doctrine, and the disapproval of France will not deter them in the least.

BOSTON has been furnishing the embezzlement sensations the past week. Mr. Gray, the trusted treasurer of large corporations, was discovered in embezzlements exceeding a million dollars. The unfortunate man, unable to endure the disgrace, took his life. Samuel G. Snelling embezzled only $350,000 and is still alive.

THE Democrats were afraid to touch the Prohibition question. The Republicans boldly advocate submitting the question to the people. Prohibitionists, which party will you help this fall? If you nominate a State ticket it places you on the side of the party which is, in reality, the eternal foe of what you are fighting for.

CLIMBING Alpine glaciers seems to possess the sort of fascination for the foolhardy in Europe that the Niagara whirlpool rapids exert in this country. A number of deaths of tourists have occurred this season, and a party who were caught by an avalanche have just been dug out and rescued by the efforts of a body of guides.

THE managers of the Minneapolis Exposition have Mrs. Cleveland's promise that she will open the show for them. She will not be at Minneapolis in person, but a telegraph wire will connect the Exposition building with the President's cottage in the Adirondacks, and Mrs. Cleveland will do the opening act by pressing a button at the proper time.

THE Philadelphia Record (Democratic) does not like the nomination of Mr. Black. It says: "Mr. Black is an amiable, easy going, lubberly gentleman without one attribute of leadership in his composition. His nomination is a triumph of Randallism over Democracy. He represents the power of patronage, not precisely because he chooses to do so, but because he had no choice in the matter."

Boss Rule.

We don't believe very much in making a complaint regarding boss rule in politics, because we recognize the fact that so long as parties exist they must have leaders, who will be designated as bosses. If, however, there are persons who abhor any species of so-called bossism in politics, we believe we can point them to the party in which bossism exists in its worst form and which consequently, is most obnoxious.

In the Democratic county convention in this county, a week ago, all the candidates were nominated by the bosses and the ring asserted its control as it never before was able to do. The power of the bosses in Centre county has been steadily and surely growing and now it is dominant. There is a certain clique who can compel the Democratic voters to obey their slightest wish. They can be marched to the polls like sheep to the fold and not one of them dare say that his life is his own. The laws of the Medes and Persians were not more faithfully executed.

In the State the Democratic party has been in power only a short time, but its boss rule is fully established. In the recent State Convention Chauncey Forward Black was made the candidate for Governor at the dictation of Randall and Pattison. For him the brilliant statesman, Wallace, was thrown overboard. This seems to have been base ingratitude on the part of Randall, as it was Wallace's eloquent voice that named Randall for the Presidential nomination in the Cincinnati convention and made what it is conceded was the best speech of the convention. He should at least have the grace to return good for good and this would have influenced him to heartily support Mr. Wallace. But Black is a negative man. He has none of the qualities of leadership. He can be used by the leaders and will be pliable in their hands. Although the "son of his father," he has not his father's strength of mind, and the Pattison-Randall bosses will find in him a tool.

One evidence of this is that Chuncey F. Black is a member of the retiring State administration and the bosses have learned how easily he can be used Therefore, he was nominated. If additional evidence be needed it can be obtained from the proceedings of the convention which nominated him. Freedom of speech was not permitted. The objectional gag law was enforced. No words of motions inimical to Black were listened to. "It is an outrage!" "We never knew anything like it!" were the expressions heard from all parts of the hall. Wallace was terribly snubbed.

We can assure our readers in no convention ever held by the Republicans of this State were the proceedings carried on in such a highhanded, arbitrary manner.

The will of the bosses was consummated. Black and many other administration creatures were nominated and the party is called upon to seal the will of the bosses at the polls. Will they do it? If their much-vaunted independence amounts to anything we predict that they will not, but will vote for the Republican ticket, which is made up of gentlemen none of whom was nominated for any other reason than because of his individual merit and popularity.

Mrs. Cleland Favors Temperance.

Mrs. Frances Cleveland, wife of the President has written to Mrs. Crow, of Littleton, West Virginia, the following, in answer to a letter asking her advice as to the propriety of a woman's signing the temperance pledge:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON.

MRS. A. M. CROW:

The subject which you refer and ask my advice upon is one in which your own conscience must dictate the wisest course for yourself to pursue. You have better opportunities for knowing how you can do most good, and it seems to me that should be the standard by which women should settle all our great questions in life. It rarely occurs that a man needs for herself the restraining influences of a temperance pledge; if by placing ourselves under the obligations of such an organization we can better help our fathers, brothers, lovers and friends, I think there should be no hesitation in the matter. I am something of the Good Templars that they do much good work. I am quite certain you can do no harm by putting your lot on the side of temperance, and you may do much good. I do not consider it a small matter by any means, and I am glad you ask the question. It is encouraging to know of every sister who wants to lend her strength to the cause, which, I pray, some day, will rid our land of dead men and broken families.

Truly yours,

Aug. 12, '86. FRANCES CLEVELAND.

HAVE you attended to the duty of putting your name on the registry list?

The Modern Dives and Lazarus.

The National Tribune is the source from which we obtain the following narrative, which is certainly worth reading:

1. There was a certain Great Man, and a ruler of the people, who clothed himself in broadcloth and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day on costly wines and game in its season.

2. And like Jeshurun, who ruled over Israel, he waxed fat and became greatly puffed up, for within a very short space of time he had been taken from among the lowly and made ruler over many millions. Then forgot he what he had been and what he soon would be again. Such is the heart of man.

3. And every day he lifted up his voice and thanked God that he was not as other men—even Congressmen, but was wiser and more cunning and purer in heart than the law givers whom the people had set over themselves.

4. And he mocked them with a sharp tongue and many harsh words, and set their acts down as naught.

5. There was a certain Other Man, stricken in years and beset with sore afflictions. He had not waxed fat, neither had he become great, for in his youth he had gone out to fight for his country while the Great Man staid at home and gathered wealth, and made himself solid as the common speech hath it, with his party.

6. It had come to pass that the Other Man while fighting for his country had been compassed about by its enemies, who smote him grievously. They hewed off his arm with the edge of the sword, and they brake his leg with the missiles of war.

7. Now he came to the door of the White House, and looked up and saw the Great Man sitting there arrayed like unto a fashion plate, and digesting a good dinner by the aid of a good cigar from the isles of the southern seas.

8. And he cried aloud unto the Great Man, saying: "O, Cleveland, thou art great, and art set in a high place! May you live long, and your shadow never be less. Sign, I beseech you, the bill which the lawgivers have presented you, for verily my need is great, and my little ones cry for bread. I ask only what the country promised me."

9. And the Great Man answered him scornfully, and said: "Verily you are one of those who got bumped on the pommels of their saddles. Go to, you shall have naught."

10. Then brake the heart of the old soldier, and he lay down and gave up the ghost, and his bones were laid in the pottersfield.

[The remainder of the MS. of this interesting recital seems to have been lost in the mails, but we find that the original story in St. Luke continues in this wise:]

The rich man also died, and was buried:

25. And in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

24. And he cried and said, Father Abrahan, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.

25. But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazaras evil things; but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

IN Brussels, there is a great deal of socialistic agitation growing out of labor troubles, which promises to culminate sometime in serious trouble. A revolution seems to be pending. Workingmen are clamoring for universal suffrage in the belief that it will ameliorate the condition of the working classes. At present there is a great deal of suffering among them, due to several causes, one of which is the agricultural distress resulting partly from competition with American grain. It is as difficult, however, to assign definite causes for the trouble there as it is in the United States. Great processions, with their banners, etc., like the one in Brussels, when 40,000 people were in line, show the intense feeling existing, but the same thing is rife all over Europe.

THE question with the New York Bar is, who is Mr. Arthur G. Sedgwick, Mr. Bayard's special envoy to Mexico and who was described to the public as an eminent New York lawyer? Mr. Sedgwick appears to have been unknown to fame and publicity until Mr. Bayard boosted him into his present conspicuity.

A Righteous Verdict.

The conviction of seven of the eight Chicago Anarchists for murder and their sentence to death will be received by the whole country as a righteous verdict. The trial, says the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette, has been long drawn and tedious at times, as when the jury was being empaneled, but when it is remembered that less than four months have passed since the Haymarket massacre it cannot be said that Justice has traveled with a leaden heel in this case. That the defendants have had a fair and impartial trial is not to be question, and it may be taken for granted that the verdict of jury will stand undisturbed. In the selection of jurors the defendants were not backward in availing themselves of every right and privilege accorded them by the law and it was feared that the extreme solicitude of the law for those on trial for their lives would prove to be the weakness of the State and thus sacrifice the public safety to an undue concern for the individual.

The verdict will bring home with terrible emphasis to a class of lawless agitators and disturbers of the peace in this country some lessons which have been unfortunately too long delayed. They will learn that the right of free speech, which is the boast of every American citizen, is not an unrestricted right which may be exercised even to the extent of overthrowing civil government and substituting anarchy for order. They will learn that advising murder and arson is an offense that can be punished, and that those who counsel murder may forfeit their lives with the lives of those who follow their murderous advice. They will learn that they cannot carry on their anarchistic schemes against society under the pretext of bettering the condition of the working classes, and they will learn above all that the working classes have no sympathy whatever with them or their revolutionary doctrines. These are some of the lessons taught by the verdict, and if the hanging of the seven wretched men who have been condemned to death will rid the country of the pestilent Anarchists, or hold them in wholesome dread of the law their lives will not have been wholly wasted.

The New Letter-sheet Envelope.

The new United State Letter-sheet envelope promises to be a very convenient arrangement and will soon be issued. Specimens of it have been sent to this office. It is a sheet on the inside of which the letter can be written and then it can be folded three times and sealed. The arrangement for reopening is also convenient. It will be cheap and popular, being in itself a combination of a letter sheet, envelope and a new postage-stamp of the denomination of two cents, bearing the military portrait of Gen. Grant. They will be sold at the rate of $23 per thousand, in any desired quantities, separately or in packages or pads of 25, 50 or 100 each, or folded in encased packages of 25 each, especially adapted for use when traveling.

THE Queen's speech to Parliament is dull and colorless as the Queen's speeches, or rather such utterances as are made in her name by the Prime Minister of the Crown, usually are. The most important significance it has is that the Salisbury policy will not include Ireland among the objects of legislation during the present session and that the whole Home Rule question will be laid over until next winter. In the meantime, if the words of Lord Randolph Churchill are to be trusted, there will be no resort to coercive measures, although what Churchill says one day is not always likely to hold good the next day.

CHOLERA which is held down in Europe by sanitary precautions finds a fertile field in the antipodes. It is frightfully epidemic in Japan and it is ravaging Corea. It is no vain expectation to look forward to the time when the progress of science will make cholera and smallpox as extinct as are the plague and other mysterious epidemics of the past ages.

OUR late representative to the Cannibal Islands is reported missing. Nothing strange about that under the circumstances, although a politician could hardly be as delicate a dish as a missionary.

IN this crisis in the affairs of the Anarchist party the voice of Herr Most is as subdued and muffled as if he were still under the bed.

The Duty of the Convention.

Only two weeks intervene until the Republican county convention. An important duty awaits all who go to that convention to take part in it. The duty of nominating men who are to assume the reigns of either national or local government is always important, and it is perhaps more than ordinarily important at this time.

A Republican convention is very apt to nominate good men. Our adversaries, the Democrats, have this year made the mistake of nominating their weakest candidates. Their long continuance in office in Centre county has made them careless and indifferent, and they think that any one can be elected. Notwithstanding how weak or vacillating his character may be he has only to label himself "Democrat" to receive the votes of all who bear that political name.

There is splendid material for all the offices in the Republican party, although there is no great competition to receive the nomination, for the reason that heretofore Republicans have met only defeat. But, surely, there are many Democrats in the county who value the good name and standing of official positions sufficiently high to hesitate before they disgrace it by electing the worst men in their party. If the Republicans show their appreciation for the honor of the positions by putting forward their ablest men the Democrats will have sufficient pride to come forward and help them to elect these men. Then, the occasion of the convention must be taken advantage of by a wise choice of candidates, and we doubt not that this will be done.

PRINCE ALEXANDER of Bulgaria has been deposed from his throne, has been escorted across the frontier, and has been succeeded by a provisional government. This little revolution has been wrought as quietly as it has been unexpectedly. The new government apparently is established in the interests of Russia, and indeed the whole conspiracy which has led up to Prince Alexander's abdication is doubtless the result of the intrigues of the government at St. Petersburg. It is not improbable that one of the consequences of the revolution will be a reopening of the Eastern question. Neither England nor Germany can contemplate with serenity the increased strength which Russia will gain through its control of the new government in Bulgaria. The situation may also cause the English politicians who are now in power, to consider whether it will not be expedient on their part to direct English attention from Irish politics to the old question which their great master, Beaconsfield, employed so dexterously when he did not wish the British people to think too much about what was going on at home.

WE have been shown a letter from Mr. J. T. Lucas, formerly of this place, and now at the Soldiers' Home, near Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Lucas enjoys his life at that place wonderfully well. Among other items of interest which he gives, is that which says that the Home contains 5,000 inmates. It is a lazy, comfortable place and time passes fast with the soldiers. The home is supplied with a ten pin alley, pigeon hole, bagatelle and billiard tables. There are cold and hot baths with the bath rooms well furnished. The inmates are compelled to draw clothes every three months and are always very comfortably and neatly clothed. We are glad to know that the Nation's defenders are so well cared for.

GEN. BOB TAYLOR, the Democratic branch of the two-brothers campaign in Tennessee, has resigned his position as United States pension agent on account of his candidacy. This is in accord with President Cleveland's precepts, but President Cleveland's example is in favor of never letting go of one office until the other office has been secured.

PRINCE ALEXANDER, of Bulgaria, has abdicated and a new government has been formed under the Russian protectorate. This is another step for the great eastern nation whose power is becoming great enough to threaten all Europe and to disturb that even balance of power which those nations are supposed to maintain.

We were certain before that Chauncey Black will be defeated, but the New York Sun's declaration that he "can be elected" makes assurance doubly sure.

Sam Kautz, of Lancaster, O., baited a big bone on Monday night and awaited results. He was finally rewarded by seeing a number of rats gnawing and pulling at the bone, and blazed away, and he was not a little surprised to discover that he had killed eight big rats in one shot.

Frank Kellison, a well-known citizen of Lefleuff, near Erie, was crushed to death Friday in the quarries. He was there as a visitor, and failed to hear the warning which the quarrymen gave as a huge overhanging ledge of rocks started to fall in. Kellison's remains have been recovered.

From Glens Falls comes the story that a compositor who imagined he had talent for construction of sentences had this line to set: "A tall woman with a slight stoop." He substituted the word piazza for stoop, and suffers the consequence of his rash act, as he wonders across the country looking for work.

In answer to an inquiry whether it is a violation of the executive civil-service order for an official to go home to his district and vote at the primary election to nominate a Congressional candidate, Solicitor General Jenks replied that the circular does not require an abdication of civil rights nor the duty of a citizen, but that the official influence of the officer be divorced from party politics. An honest purpose to carry out the intent of the circular will, as a rule, be the guide in its observance.

5. There was a certain Other Man, stricken in years and beset with sore afflictions. He had not waxed fat, neither had he become great, for in his youth he had gone out to fight for his country while the Great Man staid at home and gathered wealth, and made himself solid as the common speech hath it, with his party.

6. It had come to pass that the Other Man while fighting for his country had been compassed about by its enemies, who smote him grievously. They hewed off his arm with the edge of the sword, and they brake his leg with the missiles of war.

7. Now he came to the door of the White House, and looked up and saw the Great Man sitting there arrayed like unto a fashion plate, and digesting a good dinner by the aid of a good cigar from the isles of the southern seas.

8. And he cried aloud unto the Great Man, saying: "O, Cleveland, thou art great, and art set in a high place! May you live long, and your shadow never be less. Sign, I beseech you, the bill which the lawgivers have presented you, for verily my need is great, and my little ones cry for bread. I ask only what the country promised me."

9. And the Great Man answered him scornfully, and said: "Verily you are one of those who got bumped on the pommels of their saddles. Go to, you shall have naught."

10. Then brake the heart of the old soldier, and he lay down and gave up the ghost, and his bones were laid in the pottersfield.

[The remainder of the MS. of this interesting recital seems to have been lost in the mails, but we find that the original story in St. Luke continues in this wise:]

The rich man also died, and was buried:

25. And in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

24. And he cried and said, Father Abrahan, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.

25. But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazaras evil things; but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

IN Brussels, there is a great deal of socialistic agitation growing out of labor troubles, which promises to culminate sometime in serious trouble. A revolution seems to be pending. Workingmen are clamoring for universal suffrage in the belief that it will ameliorate the condition of the working classes. At present there is a great deal of suffering among them, due to several causes, one of which is the agricultural distress resulting partly from competition with American grain. It is as difficult, however, to assign definite causes for the trouble there as it is in the United States. Great processions, with their banners, etc., like the one in Brussels, when 40,000 people were in line, show the intense feeling existing, but the same thing is rife all over Europe.

THE question with the New York Bar is, who is Mr. Arthur G. Sedgwick, Mr. Bayard's special envoy to Mexico and who was described to the public as an eminent New York lawyer? Mr. Sedgwick appears to have been unknown to fame and publicity until Mr. Bayard boosted him into his present conspicuity.

A Righteous Verdict.

The conviction of seven of the eight Chicago Anarchists for murder and their sentence to death will be received by the whole country as a righteous verdict. The trial, says the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette, has been long drawn and tedious at times, as when the jury was being empaneled, but when it is remembered that less than four months have passed since the Haymarket massacre it cannot be said that Justice has traveled with a leaden heel in this case. That the defendants have had a fair and impartial trial is not to be question, and it may be taken for granted that the verdict of jury will stand undisturbed. In the selection of jurors the defendants were not backward in availing themselves of every right and privilege accorded them by the law and it was feared that the extreme solicitude of the law for those on trial for their lives would prove to be the weakness of the State and thus sacrifice the public safety to an undue concern for the individual.

The verdict will bring home with terrible emphasis to a class of lawless agitators and disturbers of the peace in this country some lessons which have been unfortunately too long delayed. They will learn that the right of free speech, which is the boast of every American citizen, is not an unrestricted right which may be exercised even to the extent of overthrowing civil government and substituting anarchy for order. They will learn that advising murder and arson is an offense that can be punished, and that those who counsel murder may forfeit their lives with the lives of those who follow their murderous advice. They will learn that they cannot carry on their anarchistic schemes against society under the pretext of bettering the condition of the working classes, and they will learn above all that the working classes have no sympathy whatever with them or their revolutionary doctrines. These are some of the lessons taught by the verdict, and if the hanging of the seven wretched men who have been condemned to death will rid the country of the pestilent Anarchists, or hold them in wholesome dread of the law their lives will not have been wholly wasted.

The New Letter-sheet Envelope.

The new United State Letter-sheet envelope promises to be a very convenient arrangement and will soon be issued. Specimens of it have been sent to this office. It is a sheet on the inside of which the letter can be written and then it can be folded three times and sealed. The arrangement for reopening is also convenient. It will be cheap and popular, being in itself a combination of a letter sheet, envelope and a new postage-stamp of the denomination of two cents, bearing the military portrait of Gen. Grant. They will be sold at the rate of $23 per thousand, in any desired quantities, separately or in packages or pads of 25, 50 or 100 each, or folded in encased packages of 25 each, especially adapted for use when traveling.

THE Queen's speech to Parliament is dull and colorless as the Queen's speeches, or rather such utterances as are made in her name by the Prime Minister of the Crown, usually are. The most important significance it has is that the Salisbury policy will not include Ireland among the objects of legislation during the present session and that the whole Home Rule question will be laid over until next winter. In the meantime, if the words of Lord Randolph Churchill are to be trusted, there will be no resort to coercive measures, although what Churchill says one day is not always likely to hold good the next day.

CHOLERA which is held down in Europe by sanitary precautions finds a fertile field in the antipodes. It is frightfully epidemic in Japan and it is ravaging Corea. It is no vain expectation to look forward to the time when the progress of science will make cholera and smallpox as extinct as are the plague and other mysterious epidemics of the past ages.

OUR late representative to the Cannibal Islands is reported missing. Nothing strange about that under the circumstances, although a politician could hardly be as delicate a dish as a missionary.

IN this crisis in the affairs of the Anarchist party the voice of Herr Most is as subdued and muffled as if he were still under the bed.

The Duty of the Convention.

Only two weeks intervene until the Republican county convention. An important duty awaits all who go to that convention to take part in it. The duty of nominating men who are to assume the reigns of either national or local government is always important, and it is perhaps more than ordinarily important at this time.

A Republican convention is very apt to nominate good men. Our adversaries, the Democrats, have this year made the mistake of nominating their weakest candidates. Their long continuance in office in Centre county has made them careless and indifferent, and they think that any one can be elected. Notwithstanding how weak or vacillating his character may be he has only to label himself "Democrat" to receive the votes of all who bear that political name.

There is splendid material for all the offices in the Republican party, although there is no great competition to receive the nomination, for the reason that heretofore Republicans have met only defeat. But, surely, there are many Democrats in the county who value the good name and standing of official positions sufficiently high to hesitate before they disgrace it by electing the worst men in their party. If the Republicans show their appreciation for the honor of the positions by putting forward their ablest men the Democrats will have sufficient pride to come forward and help them to elect these men. Then, the occasion of the convention must be taken advantage of by a wise choice of candidates, and we doubt not that this will be done.

PRINCE ALEXANDER of Bulgaria has been deposed from his throne, has been escorted across the frontier, and has been succeeded by a provisional government. This little revolution has been wrought as quietly as it has been unexpectedly. The new government apparently is established in the interests of Russia, and indeed the whole conspiracy which has led up to Prince Alexander's abdication is doubtless the result of the intrigues of the government at St. Petersburg. It is not improbable that one of the consequences of the revolution will be a reopening of the Eastern question. Neither England nor Germany can contemplate with serenity the increased strength which Russia will gain through its control of the new government in Bulgaria. The situation may also cause the English politicians who are now in power, to consider whether it will not be expedient on their part to direct English attention from Irish politics to the old question which their great master, Beaconsfield, employed so dexterously when he did not wish the British people to think too much about what was going on at home.

WE have been shown a letter from Mr. J. T. Lucas, formerly of this place, and now at the Soldiers' Home, near Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Lucas enjoys his life at that place wonderfully well. Among other items of interest which he gives, is that which says that the Home contains 5,000 inmates. It is a lazy, comfortable place and time passes fast with the soldiers. The home is supplied with a ten pin alley, pigeon hole, bagatelle and billiard tables. There are cold and hot baths with the bath rooms well furnished. The inmates are compelled to draw clothes every three months and are always very comfortably and neatly clothed. We are glad to know that the Nation's defenders are so well cared for.

GEN. BOB TAYLOR, the Democratic branch of the two-brothers campaign in Tennessee, has resigned his position as United States pension agent on account of his candidacy. This is in accord with President Cleveland's precepts, but President Cleveland's example is in favor of never letting go of one office until the other office has been secured.

PRINCE ALEXANDER, of Bulgaria, has abdicated and a new government has been formed under the Russian protectorate. This is another step for the great eastern nation whose power is becoming great enough to threaten all Europe and to disturb that even balance of power which those nations are supposed to maintain.

We were certain before that Chauncey Black will be defeated, but the New York Sun's declaration that he "can be elected" makes assurance doubly sure.

In answer to an inquiry whether it is a violation of the executive civil-service order for an official to go home to his district and vote at the primary election to nominate a Congressional candidate, Solicitor General Jenks replied that the circular does not require an abdication of civil rights nor the duty of a citizen, but that the official influence of the officer be divorced from party politics. An honest purpose to carry out the intent of the circular will, as a rule, be the guide in its observance.

Poetry.

THE DARLING FLY.

Oh, the fly's a riser early
Nowadays,
And he makes the sleeper surly
With his lays.
He is very, very fresh,
And he has an eye for flesh
To amaze.

He's a most persisten fellow—
Is the fly;
You may kick the bedstead mellow,
Or may try.
But you cannot frighten him;
He'll return with greater vim
By and by.

Well he knows a perfect sleeping
From pretense,
And he knows when he is creeping,
How immense
Is your rage, but still he goes
For the flesh that you expose
And through rents.

If he thought that you could strike him
With your fist,
Or if you were up, just like him,
He's desist;
For the names of lazy men
He has written with his pen
On his list.

A CHALLENGE.

"Good-night," he said, and he held her hand
In a hesitating way,
And hoped that her eyes would understand
What his tongue refused to say.

He held her hand, and he murmured low:
"I'm sorry to go like this."
It seems so frigidly cold, you know,
This 'Mister' of ours, and 'Miss,'

"I thought—perchance"—and he paused to note
If she seemed inclined to frown,
But the light in her eyes his heart-strings smote,
As she blushingly looked down.

She spoke no word, but she picked a speck
Of dust from his coat lapel;
So small, such a wee little tiny fleck,
'Twas a wonder she saw so well;

But it brought her face so very near,
In the dim, uncertain light
That the thought, unspoken, was made quite clear
And I know 'twas a sweet "Good-night."

TILDEN.

Once more, O all-adjusting Death,
The Nation's Pantheon opens wide;
Once more a common sorrow saith,
A strong, wise man hath died.

Faults doubtless had he. Had we not,
Our own to question and asperse,
The worth we doubted or forgot,
Until we stood beside his hearse.

Ambitious, cautious, yet the man,
To strike down fraud with resolute hand,
A patriot, if a partisan,
He loved his native land.

So let the mourning bells be rung,
The banner droop its folds half-way,
And let the public pen and tongue
Their fitting tribute pay.

Then let us vow above his bier,
To set our feet on party lies;
And wound no more a living ear,
With words that death denies.

JOHN G. WHITTIER.

THE NEWSPAPER PRESS.

What sound on the lingering ear ever rang
And gave to the heart quicker beat
Than the newspaper press, with its clatter and clang,
And its hundreds of hurrying feet?

The rattle of wheels of the swift-moving car
Tell the ear that man manages might,
But, with rumble and roar and terrestrial jar,
It vanishes into the night.

The organ inspires with its powerful strain,
But that is a memory soon;
And the reaper triumphantly moves through the grain,
But is quiet at night and at noon.

You may search the world over for sounds that inspire,
But will surely come home to confess
There is naught farther reaching, more fit to admire,
Than the clash o the newspaper press.

THE UMPIRE AHEAD.

There's a symmetry of motion
To my sympathetic notion
In the pitcher as he curves the ball;

There's an idyl, great in diction,
Quite exciting as a fiction,
In the batter when he flies the wall.

And the pose of grace and beauty
Of the catcher doing duty,
Is an epic quite exceeding all.

But for poetry of motion,
To my unpretentious notion,
There's nothing like the umpire's gall.

Our Story Teller.

MRS. ARBUTHNOT'S POSTAL CARDS.

Friends of the two girls often thought it was a great pity that Mrs. Arbuthnot and her husband had been appointed sole guardians of Jasper Nevins' nieces, with full care of their money as well as of the girls themselves; for Mr. Arbuthnot, though a good, well-meaning man, was as clay in his acute wife's hands, and all who knew her knew that money was the one thing she worshiped.

In her way, she was fond of these girls, whose mother had been her favorite sister, and she gave them a happy home—happy, that is, until the ever-troublesome questions about lovers began to arise.

Lilias Nevins was but little more than a year older than her sister Minnie, and the two were as united as twins could have been; rather too much united on one point for the comfort of their Aunt Hettie, as they called Mrs. Arbuthnot, and that was their opinion of Frank Carroll and Felipe Mariscal.

"I do declare, Lilias," said Minnie one night after they had retired to their room for the night, "I can not comprehend why Aunt Hettie so dotes on Mr. Mariscal; he is as sallow and thin as any man can possibly be; he hasn't two words to say for himself; he is not particularly polite to auntie—why does she like him so much?"

"It is clear enough to me," replied Lilias. "You know Aunt Hettie was really very poor when she was young, and she dreads poverty for us; she honestly thinks she is acting for my good in giving the cold shoulder to Frank Carroll because he is a poor young bookkeeper, while this Mariscal has heaps of money and fine estates in Mexico. At first I really did believe that his reputed fortune and position were all humbug, but now that auntie's inquiries have proved him to be all he pretends to be, I am not quite so uncivil to him as I was at first."

"The worst of the affair is that I fear that Mr. Mariscal intends to propose right off," said Minnie. "I judge so from a word or two he said to uncle to-night, just before he left us. I heard uncle say: 'If my wife were here she could answer you better than I; I will tell her about it when she returns from the party she has gone to, and she will write you to-morrow.' To what, but a proposal could he have referred?"

"Well, I will not marry him!" exclaimed Lilias determinedly: "I'll say 'no' right at the altar first; I'll elope with Frank first!"

"If you marry against auntie's wishes remember you forfeit all your share of the money, and Frank is not rich," answered Minnie, warningly.

"Oh, dear, so I do; well I am in a fix! Come, let's go to bed and try to dream of some way of softening auntie's heart," said Lilias, wearily, commencing to undress. "Why, where's my watch? I do believe I left it on the library table, and I am in my bare feet—Minnie, do you mind going down for it?"

Not she! Neither of the girls was one bit timid, so Minnie, who had not begun to undress, ran to the library for the watch. She was gone some minutes, and Lilias was just beginning to be alarmed about her when she returned, apologizing for her delay, saying that the evening paper had caught her eye, and she had paused long enough to read over the deaths and marriages—just as any girl would.

The next morning Mrs. Arbuthnot said calmly, as if she were saying nothing at all odd:—

"I will want you to go into the city with me by and-by, Lilias, to select some new bonnets and dresses; we may as well begin to prepare for your wedding."

"For my wedding?" gasped Lilias in surprise.

"Certainly; you must know that Mr. Mariscal has been serious in the attentions he has been paying to you these last three months; your manner to him has been such that I considered that he and I and everyone are justified in taking it for granted that you are ready to become his wife. The wedding must take place quite soon, for he told my husband last night that some matters concerning his Mexican estates make it necessary for him to return home within a month, and he desires to take his wife with him."

"Really, auntie, I think he might give me a little say in the matter," cried Lilias in vexation; but said no more because Minnine trod on her foot in a very significant way, and gave her a wink which certainly meant "keep quiet." Lilias understood all her sister's signals, for Minnie, though the younger, had much more discretion and acuteness than impulsive Lilias. Exactly what plan Minnie now had she could not imagine, still she thought she would not spoil it by saying too much.

"Buy your clothes and don't contradict auntie," said Minnie by the deaf and dumb alphabet; their aunt was not looking her way.

"You should remember it is not the custom in this country for a young man to speak of his intentions to any girl until her guardians have been consulted and have given their approval to his proposal; so like a well-bred Mexican, he has come to me and obtained my opinion about his suit," replied Mrs. Arbuthnot.

"And of course you can not go back of your word?" suggested Minnie, insinuatingly.

"Most certainly not. I shall abide by what I have written to both Mr. Mariscal and Frank Carroll; if they are not suited with what I wrote I cannot help it I will abide by my decision, and so I have told your uncle Arbuthnot, so that in case I do not get home from my trip to Paris before the very latest day set in my letter, the wedding must go on without me—or else you, Lilias, will be a pauper."

"Lilias is so impulsive, you know, Aunt Hettie, that I do wish you would write that down so she will not forgot," suggested Minnie, handing a sheet of paper to Mrs. Aubuthnot and then withdrawing it, adding, "Suppose I write it and let you sign it, as you say your eyes trouble you to-day."

"Do so, my dear; my eyes are very bad to-day; but for them I would postpone my journey until later in the season."

So Minnie wrote:—"I intend to adhere strictly and literally to the terms in which I yesterday wrote to Mr. Mariscal and Frank Carroll; if they are not suited with what I wrote, I can't help it. I will abide by that decision." And to this Mrs. Arbuthnot appended her name and the date.

Somewhat to Mrs. Arbuthnot's surprise none of the family saw anything of Mr. Mariscal all that day; and she had to start that night for New York, whence she was to sail for Paris, without seeing him again.

Early the next morning there came to the house, not Mr. Mariscal, but Frank Carroll, who, to Lilias' intense amazement, greeted here as if he were her accepted lover. As soon as she she could do so—that is, as soon as she could make up her mind to do so—she withdrew from his enfolding arms and exclaimed:

"Why, Frank! How courageous you are to venture here in such an assured manner after what Aunt Hettie wrote to you!"

"Courageous?" he repeated. "I don't understand you; it is because I received her card that I am here now. I must own that I was a little surprised when I read it, though."

"What could she have said to you?" asked Lilias in amazement still.

"Here it is—read it for yourself; I only got it this morning, having been away on business, or I'd have been here last evening," he answered, handing a postal card to Lilias.

Mrs. Arbuthnot was one of those people who used a postal card for any and all purposes; she had a perfect mania for them and could not be persuaded not to write the most confidential things upon them; so Lilias was not at all surprised that she had written her communications to the two young men on these cards, though most people prefer to send such missives in a sealed envelope. She read:

"So sorry that I cannot see you to-night. I write in haste and confusion to say that I am more than willing that you should marry Lilias, and I trust than she will appreciate the compliment you have paid her—from her past treatment of you I am sure she will. At any rate, it is my desire that she marry you and no one else, on pain of my anger."

To this was appended her name and the date of the preceding day.

Lilias was mystified, Frank jubilant, Mr. Arbuthnot mildly puzzled but acquiescent, and Minnie smiling but silent. When Mr. Arbuthnot told Frank that his wife had said something about having Lilias' marriage within a month, even though she went away, and when Lilias and Minnie agreed with him, he was only too glad to aid in carrying out her expressed wishes; so the wedding dresses were made up in a hurry, and in exactly a month after the date of her card to Frank, Mrs. Arbuthnot's oldest daughter was married to her true lover.

An hour or so after the wedding, Minnie said carelessly to Lilias:—

"Did you ever hear any more of Mr. Mariscal's desire to marry you?"

"Bless me, no! I had entirely forgotten the man! Why, sure enough, didn't auntie say she had accepted his offer and—what are you laughing at, Minnie?" said Lilias.

"Do you remember the night I went down to the library to get your watch, and you wanted to know why I was gone so long? I said I had paused to read the deaths and marriages in the paper; well, that was true, but there lay on the library table two postal cards, in auntie's own writing, addressed to your two lovers. I picked them up and read them—now don't frown, postals are not private! I found that she had evidently made a mistake in addressing them, for the one bearing Mr. Mariscal's name was a very blunt request for him to keep away from you; the other Frank has shown you. I was so afraid that she would find out her mistake before she went abroad that I just opened the front door and ran out and mailed them."

Such was indeed the case. What would otherwise have been Mrs. Arbuthnot's wrath at Minnie's haste to mail the misdirected cards no one knows, but as she chanced, almost as soon as she arrived in Paris, to learn that Mariscal was already privately married, she never in any way referred to the matter, and as Frank made the best of husbands, she soon forgot that she had ever been opposed to the match.

Helps on Wash Days.

Cosmopolitan.

The burden of washing day has been much lessened of late by improved methods, in which the boiling process has been left out. The following plan is one of the best:

Throw the clothes into a tub and cover them with boiling hot suds, made very strong with soap or some approved washing fluid. Let them soak half an hour, then rub them, having the water as hot as the hands can bear. You will find the rubbing marvelously easy. The old notion that hot water scalds the dirt in has proved false; it scalds it out by melting the grease that holds it in the cloth. Wring out into another tub and turn on boiling hot water again, with or without soap. Stir well with the clothes stick and let them scald from fifteen to thirty minutes stir well again, wring out and rinse through a warm, soft bluing water. Cold or hard water must not be used, for it will set the dirt. If obliged to use hard water for rinsing, throw in a handful of sal soda to soften it. Colored clothes are to be washed in the same way, but the suds need not be so strong, and they need soaking but ten minutes, after which they may be rinsed without without going through the scalding water.

Put brown towels into a pail and turn on boiling suds. Stir well and let them soak while the white clothes are being rubbed. Then rub these, put back into the pail, and turn on rinsing water as hot as you can bear your hands; wring and hang out. They will be beautifully clear. This system saves the use of one water and nearly half the work.

Wash flannels in hot suds, and to prevent shrinking they must be rinsed in water as hot as they are washed in It is the sudden change from hot to cold water that causes the shrinkage. If the rinsing water is not hot enough, let the clothes stand a few minutes and cool to the right temperature. A handful of borax in the water tends to soften them.

Stains from coffee and tea will come out at once if they are taken immediately and held over a pail, while boiling water is turned on them. Old stains that have been set with soap, may be bleached out on the grass and there is no better time than when the trees are in blossom.

The blackest mildew will yield readily to the following treatment: Pour a quart of boiling water on an ounce of chloride of lime When it is desolved, add three quarts of cold water. Into these put the garment, and let it soak twelve hours. If not very black, the spots will come out in less time.

Saved by King Christian.

On Sunday, July 25, King Christian and the Duke of Chartres were riding through the Forest of Klampenborg, accompanied by a groom. On a narrow road in the forest they met a char-a-banc containing a party. The carriage stopped to let the king and Duke pass, and some of the company rose to show their respects.

At the same moment the horses with the carriage got frightened, and became most unsteady, whereupon an old gentleman of the party lost his balance and tumbled out of the char-a-banc in such a position that one of his feet got entangled in the carriage and his head was under one of the wheels. The danger was great. A single movement of the carriage would be fatal.

Quick as lightning King Christian jumped from his horse and caught hold of the gentleman's head which he carefully lifted, while the Duke of Chartres spurred his horses forward and seized the carriage horses by the bridle. In this way the gentleman's life was saved and the King together with the rest of the party, helped him to ascend the char-a-banc. But the King's horse had made use of his liberty to run away, and the King was obliged to mount the groom's horse to get back to Bernstorff Palace.

The King's horse—his favorite riding horse—was not found until many hours afterward. The animal had hurt itself very much by running against some fences, and is perhaps, entirely spoiled. The King has since officially stated that he does not wish any one who is riding in a carriage to rise when they meet him.

The Diamond.

Cornhill Magazine.

Where the diamond comes from nobody knows. You can no more predict the existence of diamonds than you can the existence of genius, though, to be sure, all diamond fields to a certain extent resemble each other; and all, borrowing as they do their light from the sun, are found only in warm climates. Nor can you tell where the diamond goes to on combustion. Burn it, and it leaves no ash; the flame is exterior, like that of cork, and when it has blazed itself out there remains not even so much as would dust the antenna of a butterfly.

The ancients were as sure no diamonds could be burnt as they were that none could be broken. It was not till 1609 that De Boot suspected its inflammability, nor till 1673 that it was actually burnt. In 1694, Averani and Targioni of Cimento, at the instigation of Cosmo III, the Grand Duke of Florence, burnt the diamond in the focus of concentrated sunrays, where it was seen to crack, coruscate, and finally disappear. They had tried to learn the secret of its composition, and, like a true martyr, it had perished unconfessed; it had burnt itself out like a sun.

It was not for many centuries, nor till the fifteenth, that the diamond was cut, when, in 1456, Louis de Berquem of Bruges, discovered the secret of cutting and polishing the stone by its own sid—diamond cut diamond. Ten years later a guild was established, and in 1476 Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, sent him three fine stones—one for Sixtus IV, one for Louis XI and one for himself, which was taken off his dead finger by a soldier and sold to a priest after the battle before Nancy in 1477. Louis' grandson, Robert says he received 3,000 ducats for his work, and describes how his pupils, after learning from him all he had to teach, went and set up for themselves in Antwerp, Amsterdam and in Paris. Then the Dutchman carried the art to India; travelers speak of them there and in Persia, and at Ispahan Tavernier came upon one established. In Lisbon gems were cut by the Jews, who, on their expulsion at the end of the sixteenth century, went to Holland, settling there within a year to the number of 10,000, connected in one way or the other with diamonds.

Length of Human Life.

The New York Sun has been giving attention to vital statistics in the efforts to get at an approximate idea of the average length of human life. It finds that, according to the census of 1880, of a hundred deaths reported during the census year, forty were of persons under five years, forty-two of persons under twenty, only twenty-two of persons under fifty, and only ten of those over seventy. The proportion of deaths under five years of age is reported for the whole Union at 43.7 per 1,000 of living population, while in the cities which register deaths it was 88.4 per 1,000. In England and Wales, where the vital statistics are accurate, the deaths from 5 to 20 years of age in 1880 were less than 8 per cent. of the whole, against over 12 per cent. in the United States. From 30 to 55 they were 21 per cent. there, and in the United States from 20 to 50 they were 24 per cent. In England the deaths of persons over 75 years were about equal to the deaths over 70 here. In England and Wales only 33 per cent. of the deaths were of persons over 45 years, and in the United States only 30 per cent. were of those over 40 years.

Thus it will be seen what a large proportion of the deaths occur within the time of birth and the fifth year. Also it will be noted that infant mortality is greater in this country than in some of the nations across the ocean. Perhaps our statistics are not accurate enough to derive conclusions from, but they are doubtless correct enough to establigh the two general deductions given above. These should make us take pause, lest in our bustling civilization we neglect an important element in its performance.

The most remarkable feature about the Sun's statistics is that human life is longest in France and down trodden, oppressed Ireland. Nearly five in a hundred of the deaths in Ireland are of persons over 85; only about 35 per cent. are under 20; about 42 per cent or nearly half, are over 42. Ireland thus may smile through her tears.

A School For Umpires.

St. Paul Globe.]

"I don't know what we are to do for umpires next season," exclaimed a manager of a base ball team. "The way they are killing them off and running them out of the country will soon leave us without any men fit to umpire."

"Does it require any special training?" asked a base ball reporter.

"Why certainly. An umpire is no earthly good unless he serves through a season. He wants to get used to being cussed and sworn at. And that takes some time, you know."

"Then the chief thing is to stand abuse—to get used to having everything blamed on him, is it?"

"Yes, if he can do that he can learn the game and in time make an umpire."

"There is no danger of the stock ever running out, then, as long as there is a single proof reader left in any of the newspaper offices."

He Wants no More Camping Out.

"No, I don't want any more fishing and camping out in mine," said a swarthy young man on a Northwestern train. "I have just been trying it, and I have enough to last me a lifetime. My face is one of those that tan pretty badly in the sun, but I didn't realize how badly I had been baked until I concluded to give up camping out and go to the hotel for the rest of my stay. When dinner was ready I went in with the rest of the guests, and the head waiter being pretty busy, I found a seat for myself. Imagine my surprise and discomfiture when the head waiter came around a few minutes later and tapped me on the shoulder, saying, loud enough for everybody in the room to hear:

"Beg pahdon, sah, but cullud pussons not'lowed to eat at fust table in dis house."

Going and Coming.

"Good-by, father."

Good-by, my son; God bless you."

And the train starts, bearing the boy away to college. The old man watches it until it is out of sight, and brushing away his tears, turns to a friend.

"There goes my boy to get an education. I tell you, sir, it's something to have a boy like that!" and the happy father turns, and getting into his wagon, which is standing near by, drives home.

A year goes by, and the same wagon is standing in the same place, and the old man, with a radiant face, is waiting for the train which is bringing his boy home It comes puffing into the depot, and the boy steps down.

"Hello, gov'nor."

The old man says nothing. Thos careless words and that careless tone have struck him to the heart. Again there are tears in his eyes, but he does not say, "I tell you, sir, it's something to have a boy like that."

All Sorts.

A small country seat—the milk-stool.

Playing out—most children at a sea side resort.

Common scents—onions at a boarding house.

A vicious horse is like a nail—no woman can drive it.

The summer tramp is now indulging in his scamp season.

"Always aim a little higher than the mark!" says an exchange. What kiss a girl on the nose? Never!

Showers of mud are reported from New Zealand, and there is no political campaign going on there either.

"This is something I have just dashed off," said the farmer's wife as she took the butter from the churn.

"Do you favor home rule, Corrigan?" "No but my wife does." "So?" "Yes; her home rule is, 'Locked out after 11.'"

The claims of the Anarchists that their aim is to elevate their fellow men is all right. What we do object to is the stuff they wanted to elevate them with.

"By Jove!" exclaimed Harry, "look at that girl! She's is a picture of health!" Said Dick, who had learned to discriminate between nature and art: "A picture of health! A painting, you mean."

It is said that gasoline is a sure cure for carpet bugs. We guess it is, especially if a lighted match or a lamp is around—burn up carpet bugs, carpets, house and all, the same as a dose of arsenic will cure the colic and kill the patient.

At a revival meeting in a country town not long ago a young convert, who was by business a milkman, arose to speak. Just at the moment one of brethren started in with the hymn: "Shall We Gather at the River?"

A certain Indiana editor is said to be the possessor of three shirts, and he is so stuck up over his good fortune that he refuses to join the State Press Association. The association denounces him as a dude and a bloated aristocrat.

Last Saturday a colored girl of this city swallowed a quarter of a dollar. She was scared and went to a doctor for relief. He told her it would do no harm. She departed with a broad grin on her ebony cheeks, and said: "I've a quarter in."—Port Jervis Gazette.

The latest Presidential election in Hayti has been followed by a revelation; but that is nothing to raise a sensation over. If there had been an election there, which was not followed by a revelation, there might be reason for the wicked to fear that the Day of Judgment was at hand.

A Choice Easily Made—"Here are two poems, Mr. Editor, quite in my best style I think I may say without egotism. You may have whichever one you like the best." Wearily taking one of the manuscripts, the editor hastily glances over the poem. "I like the other one the best," was his only comment.

Man (to acquaintance)—"I was sorry to hear that you have lost your fine horse." Acquaintance—"It was a terrible loss." "It no doubt grieves you very much." "It does, indeed, sir. Tell you what's a fact: I have been married three times, but the loss of that horse was the greatest calamity that ever befell me."

The Place to Write Plainly. Banker—"What a very illegible signature old Moneybags has! I had one of his checks to-day, and the name was scarcely decipherable." Baker—"I ner saw his signature but once. Then it was almost plain enough for a blind man to read." Banker—"Where did you see it?" Baker—'Opposite the sum of ten dollars on a subscription list."

"You say your wife gets mad and raises a row?" "I should say she did. She makes enough fuss to run a train forty miles an hour. That's the way she has been doing all her life." "But if you knew she was in the habit of getting mad, why did you marry her?" "Because if I had held back she would have got madder than ever. I did it to pacify her, don't you see?"

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

What a Seaside Belle Wears.

The wardrobe of a Newport belle is something incredible for variety and costliness. She must have her morning frocks, many in number, and fresh from the hand of some celebrated artist who contrives to give them that air of studied simplicity which is the most expensive grace in the world. Then there are driving dresses, which must be effective from a distance, as well as upon close inspection, and are the result of profound meditation on the part of tailors whose fame is world wide, and whose prices are appalling. Of reception gowns, all laces and daintiness, she owns usually three or four, and her ball costumes, which are the culmination of elegance and expense, are as numerous as a doting papa can be induced to believe necessary to his daughter's complete success. There must be bonnets and hats ablibitum, gloves by the dozen, parasols of every imaginable hue, boots, shoes and satin slippers enough to set up a very respectable shop, and all the mysterious paraphernalia of a feminine toilet as plentifully provided as if Aladdin's lavish hand had supplied them. A good sized ship might be built, equipped, filled with a cargo and sent to sea, for less than the cost of an American beauty's summer outfit; and yet these lovely extravagances wonder that man is slow in wooing, and that they are so often left to linger sad, ungathered roses on tall ancestral trees. The dandy regards them longingly, with the head of his cane in his mouth, as a luxury he can never hope to possess, and the wise man cannot get out of his head Dumas' little illustration of the peche a quinze francs.

What Shall We Eat?

The foods most suitable for this climate are oats, barley and wheat. The best oats grow in Scotland. Wheat is a modern food for all classes; It has driven oats and barley out of the field, as it makes a finer loaf and is easier worked. About the middle of the thirteenth century a census was taken of a town in Essex; every house had in it a quarter of oatmeal or barley meal, but no mention is made of wheat.

We should eat freely of all the grains, such as wheat, oats, barley, maize, peas, beans and lentils, and dhal. To these fruits and nuts of every kind may be added. The addition of animal products—such as butter, eggs, cheese, milk and honey—will do very little harm, especially if used in moderations while the use of the flesh of fish, fowl and animals must be used in great moderation if we wish to be well. The use of pork, veal, fat meats and fat pastry should be relegated to persons who must eat what they can get, or to the poor only, or to the ignorant, who never bother, but take what they like, and take illness as a necessity. The wise man, and he who values his health, will avoid these foods. In considering the use of food for our bodily wants, we may state that three meals a day will supply the body with plenty of nourishment, without drawing away too much force to digest the food. If more meals are taken they flood the system with nutriment which it cannot use up, and so arise low, miserable feelings, bilious attack, headache, specs before eyes, etc.

A Demand for Women.

The demand for women in the Northwest is only exceeded by the demand for rain. Out in Wagon Wheel, Idaho, recently, a couple of old maids were called to attend a dying brother. The brother died, but before the girls could get away the whole male population was after them, including the Mayor, Justice of the Peace and other notables. Excitement ran high, and bids were six to one for the Mayor et. al. In six days after their arrival the battle was over and the girls both were engaged. The Mayor had been cut out by a strapping young minor of thirty. The weddings were set and the mother sent for, in order that the proper eclat might be given. The mother arrived in due season, and at once sailed into the girls for their disrespect of their late brother and their immoderate haste. She declared the marriages off, and announced her intention of taking her daughters back home with her. In despair a mass meeting was called, and the mayor appointed a committee to wait on the mother and persuade her to reconsider the former motion. Like all good Mayors, Chicago's included, this gentleman waited on the irate mother. He called her attention to the great need of Wagon Wheel, and in the name of patriotism implored her not to inflict such a crushing blow on the hopes of the town. The mother was obdurate, and declared that she would not depart without her daughters. On this hint the Mayor spoke. He at once proposed a compromise. The mother need not part at all. She was fair, fat and fifty odd. So was he. They would pool their issues. And they did. The three women are now concocting excuses by which all their belated female friends and relatives East can be brought to Wagon Wheel.

The Anarchists' Fate.

CHICAGO, August 20.—Mr. Foster was the first of the counsel to put in an appearance, arriving at 9.45. He was followed shortly afterward by Mr. Salomon, Judge Gary arrived at 9.47 o'clock, and almost at the same moment Captain Black and Mr. Zeisler, completing the quartette of the defendants' counsel, arrived. Captain Black remarked to his wife, when he entered: "I have just had a talk with the prisoners. They have seen the papers and know what the probable outcome is. They will laugh at death," said the attorney, with a half tragic air. He declared that they would show no excitement. Quite a number of attorneys were allowed to come within the railing, which served to give the room a somewhat more crowded appearance.

The prisoners were brought into the court room at 9.52, and were seated at the northeast corner of the court room on some side benches. The court was called to order at 9.45. The prisoners were not observable to the eyes of but very few in the court room. They presented about the usual appearance, though Spies and Fischer looked deathly pale. The jury arrived at 9.55 o'clock. There was impressive silence as they filed in. When the jury appeared, Judge Gary enjoined absolute silence. There was a whispered consultation between the judge and the clerk, when the verdict was rendered as follows:

"We, the jury, find the defendants, August Spies, Michael Schwab, Samuel Fielden, Albert R. Parsons, Adolph Fischer, George Engel and Louis Linng guilty of murder, as charged in the indictment and fix the penalty at death. We find the defendant, Oscar W. Neebe, guilty of murder in manner and form as charged in the indictment and fix the penalty at imprisonment in the penitentiary at fifteen years."

Captain Black asked that the jury be polled. The jurymen answered with firm voices.

Captain Black said he would desire to make a motion for a new trial. State Attorney General Grinnell said it would be impossible to dispose of the motion during the present term, but by agreement the motion could be argued at the September term. This was agreed to by the defense.

The Court—Let the motion be entered and continued until the next term and defendants taken back to jail.

The court then arose and addressed the jury as follows:

GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY: You have finished this long and very arduous trial which has required a very considerable sacrifice of time and some hardship. I hope that everything has been done that could possibly be done to make those sacrifices and hardships as mild as might be permitted. It does not become me to say anything in regard to the case that you have tried, or to the verdict you have rendered; but men compulsorily serving as jurors, as you have done, deserve some recognition of the service you have performed, beside the meagre compensation you have received.

The foreman of the jury said:

"The jury have deputed to me the only agreeable duty that it is our province to perform, and that is to thank the court and counsel for the defense and for the prosecution for your kindly care to make us as comfortable as possible during our confinement. We thank you."

The court responded very briefly. The prisoners had filed out during this interim under the guidance of bailiffs. Hardly had the jury left the room when a piercing shriek was heard, followed by the heavy falling of the wife of Schwab to the floor, to whom the result of the verdict had been interpreted. She is also the sister of Schnaubelt, the alleged boom thrower. She was carried out to the air by the police and soon revived. Mrs. Parsons looked haggard as she started to leave the court room, but maintained a moderate degree of composure.

The crowd remained outside for an hour after the reading of the verdict and loudly cheered the result. It is understood that the authorities now contemplate the immediate arrest of all persons even indirectly connected with the Haymarket tragedy for conspiracy, and that in this knowledge many of the active leaders, hearing the outcome of the verdict, are preparing to leave the city.

Wind and Fire.

VICTORIA, Tex., Aug. 22.—A disastrous wind storm visited this city on Friday, leaving destruction and desolation in its track. The wind blew a perfect hurricane. About 7 o'clock the morning east bound passenger train, which was standing at the depot here was blown over on the platform. Several passengers were on the train, but all of them escaped uninjured. The whole colored section is almost literally swept from the earth. Altogether there were about 75 houses completely demolished and 118 more or less damaged. The loss is roughly estimated at $100,000.

Among the buildings wrecked are both the Roman Catholic churches and the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, while the two colored churches are totally destroyed. The water works collapsed Odd Fellows' hall is in ruins, the High school building is a wreck, and two of the engine houses belonging to the fire department were completely swept out of existence. On the opposite side of the Guadaloupe river matters are reported quite serious. Here two schools and a number of residences are utterly destroyed. In the Jordan neighborhood a number of houses were blown down and demolished.

Intelligence has just been received from Indianola that a fire broke out there Friday during a heavy storm, destroying every building except two on both sides of the street, from and including the signal office to Villenuve corner. Captain Reed, the signal officer, and Dr. Rosencranz were crushed and burned in the signal office. Dr. Lewis is missing and is supposed to be lost. The Knapp family, Mrs. Shephard and her children and sister-in-law of Dr. Hodges, of Chero, are reported to be missing. The water is said to have inundated the town worse than during the great storm of 1875. The railway track is washed away for two and half miles this side of Indianola rendering communication extremely difficult.

Friday evening the body of a young woman, supposed to be that of Dr. Hodges' sister-in-law, was discovered in the water alongside the railroad track. The dead bodies of the two of Mrs. Luther's children were also found. Reports from the country contiguous to this city indicate great destruction of property. Thomas Stern, living a few miles above the city, lost two large barns, besides several miles of fencing.

A Crash on the Rail.

PHILADELPHIA, August 22.—Quite a serious accident, by which seven persons were injured, more or less seriously, occurred at Ancora, on the Camden and Atlantic railroad, this morning by a collision between a regular excursion train leaving Camden at 7 o'clock and the fast newspaper train which left Atlantic City on its return to Camden at 5.15 a. m. The latter train had orders to side track at Ancora and wait for the excursion, due there at 7.50, to pass.

The excursion train consisted of an engine and six crowded coaches. They had been running at the regular speed of twenty-two miles per hour until nearing a curve just this side of Ancora, when the engineer slacked up in order to pass on time, he being then one and a-half minutes ahead. As he rounded the curve he saw the newspaper train just about to enter the siding, but before he could reverse his engine they collided with terrific force. The tender of the passenger train engine was telescoped into the smoking car and the car immediately behind was badly damaged, but neither of them left the rails.

When the collision was seen to be inevitable, the engineer and fireman jumped and escaped injury, with the exception of Engineer Pine, of the excursion train, who was badly hurt and may die. The passengers injured are Andrew Dunigan, aged 15, injured about the head and lost all his teeth; Anthony Fill, aged 25, two ribs broken; Albert Soule, aged 20 and Max Soule, his brother, aged 17, injured internally—the latter receiving also a contusion of the left arm; J. Dougherty, aged 15, and James Dougherty, his father, bruised about the head. The latter two were removed to Atlantic City and the others were taken to their homes. All were residents of Philadelphia.

A wrecking train and medical assistance was quickly dispatched from Camden, and all aid possible was rendered the injured ones. The second section of the excursion train took the passengers to Atlantic City by way of the West Jersey road, and the wreck was cleared away by 5 o'clock this afternoon and travel resumed.

General Negley Sued.

WASHINGTON, August 22.—James H. Loh, of Pittsburg, yesterday filled suit against Representative Negley, of Pennsylvania, for damages in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars for slander. Loh was arrested for libel several weeks ago and the attorney who defended him alleges he was employed to defend General Negley. Negley refused to pay the attorney, and it was during an altercation between him and the lawyer over the payment of the fee that the alleged slanderous language was used by Negley. In his declaration Loh alleges that General Negley referred to him as a d——d scoundrel and a thief, and used other offensive and degrading words of the same sort.

Hensel Retires from Journalism.

LANCASTER, August 22.—Considerable surprise was caused yesterday in newspaper and journalistic circles here by the unexpected announcement that W. U. Hensel had sold his half interest in the Intelligencer. The purchasers are Richard M. Reilly, for some years past managing editor, and Robert Clark, for a long time business manager of the paper. Mr. Hensel has been one of the proprietors of the Intelligencer for over twelve years, and it is said he will for the present devote his time exclusively to the democratic state committee, of which he is chairman.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

A Printer With a History.

"Mr. Alexander Hewitt, an elderly compositor on his summer rambles, spent some time in Bellefonte last week. The old man is not without an interesting history and a somewhat romantic and adventurous career. After serving a seven-years' apprenticeship at the 'case,' in Stirling, Scotland, he shortly afterward enlisted in the British army in August, 1851, for the term of ten years. During his military service he participated in the memorial Crimean campaign in 1854, '55 and '56. The Fourth Division, to which his regiment belonged, was ordered to the assistance of the hapless cavalry at Balaklava, but arrived too late to be of any material aid. Drawn up in battle array they witnessed the return of the remnant of the gallant "Six Hundred" from the direful but noble charge which the Light Brigade had made upon the Russian batteries.

"A few days afterward, on that cold, drizzly, misty Sunday morning, November 5, 1854, our soldier-printer was in the thick of the fight on the far-famed Heights of Inkermann, in which battle history tells us that 9,000 British troops faced and kept at bay for several hours 56,000 Russian soldiers. At the very onslaught, and scarcely was the stern order given to 'Charge and cheer?' by the regimental commander when that officer fell mortally wounded. General Sir George Cathcart, who commanded the division, was killed outright, as also many officers of distinction. After five hours' hard fighting, "typo" received a wound in the left elbow. Every man fought for himself that day, and thus this brilliant affair in the annals of war is not inaptly styled the 'soldiers' battle.' On the 18th of June, 1855, Hewitt was one of the forlorn hope in the ill-fated attack on the Redan battery, when the leader, General Sir John Campbell, was killed amid the shower of Russian grape-shot which awaited the doomed attacking party. He witnessed the fall of Sebastopol, and the blowing-up of the Russian fleet in the harbor.

"Peace was proclaimed early the next year, when his regiment—the Twenty-first Royal North British Fusileers—was stationed on the island of Malta for over three years; thence sent to the Island of Barbadoes, West Indies, and Demarara, British Guiana. In Barbadoes, the Scotch soldier's term of service expired, when he was discharged in 1861 and sent home to his 'ain countrie.'

"Laying down the musket, he cheerfully took to picking up type, which he still manipulates. Alexander came to this country some years ago, and we trust that he may obtain his heartfelt wish—that of employment in some good country office. He was employed here for a few days, and we can honestly say that he is a good compositor, turning out a most remarkable clean proof, his composition at the same time showing that his English education has not been neglected but rather improved by experience, study and travel.

There is no better political paper in the State than the Philadelphia Press. There is no better newspaper. There is no better Republican paper. It should be in the hands of all Republicans and would be found of interest even to those of a different political faith. There is no better paper in Centre county than the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN. There is no better local newspaper. There is no better political paper. Strongly Republican and always true to the noble principles of this grand old party, it has come to be a recognized oracle by its thousands of readers. Read universally by Republicans, it is also read by thousands of Democrats, and others of every shade of political opinion and ism. Even those who do not subscribe for the REPUBLICAN hunt the paper at the house of their neighbor to see what it has to say upon the questions which divide the parties in the Nation, State and County, and to read the local and other news which the other papers have missed. Such a household necessity has this paper become that many people are subscribing for it to save the trouble of going to their neighbors to get it—a wise conclusion. In view of the fact that these are Democratic times, that therefore money is hard to get, the wheat crop has failed and many people are out of work, (just what we said would happen if Blaine was defeated) we have concluded to give the Phila. Press one year, free, to all our subscribers who comply with the terms as advertised, and to all others who will come, the offer is still open of the REBUBLICAN for two dollars a year, and the Press one year free. An important campaign is at hand, and now is the time to subscribe.

—A party of young people who went to the cave on Friday last was one of the most enjoyable of the season. It was somewhat larger than such parties usually are and among those who composed it were the following young ladies: Miss Vinnie Dixon, of Tyrone; Miss Smith, of Centre Hall; Miss Bunnell, of Milroy; Misses Stella Armor, Jennie Crittenden, Katie Bullock, Emma Montgomery, Lulu Harper, Jennie Pontius and Emma Aikens of Bellefonte. The young gentlemen must not be omitted on such occasions. There were six from Tyrone, viz., Gerald Hoover, Lous McGarvey, Ed. Dixon, Charles Morris, Thomas Morris and Charlie Laird. The others were from Bellefonte. Among them were Will Brew, Thomas Moore, Jerome Harper, Frank Lukenbach, Geo. Meek, Ed. Shaffer, Jno. Bower, Edgar Burnside. So far as the pleasures of the day were concerned not a circumstance occured to mar them. Of course, after they came home some of the Tyrone gentlemen were slightly ill, but that is only an ordinary result of such occasions and they are now all right and ready for another similar excursion.

A Young Girl Burned to Death.

Ella, the little nine year old daughter of Mr. Adam Decker, of Snydertown, near Hublersburg, in this county, was so severely burned by her clothing taking fire last Saturday afternoon, that she died the following day.

The circumstances attending this sad event are as follows: Mrs. Decker, her mother, was preparing a chicken for cooking and Ella asked to be allowed to singe the feathers, as she had often seen her mother do. The permission was given her and the flames caught to Ella's clothing, burning rapidly. The little girl ran screaming from the house and had gone around the house twice before her father could catch her and extinguish the flames. The little girl's flesh was burned to a crisp and fell from her person.

We sympathise with the distressed parents, who are among the most excellent people in this county. The funeral was held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

—Tennis tournaments increase in interest as the game becomes better understood. On Saturday a tournament took place on the beautiful grounds surrounding Mrs. Reuben Valentine's residence. It was unusually interesting and exciting and the deliveries were gracefully made, the entire tournament eliciting the untiring interest of about fifty spectators. The players were Messrs. Samuel and James Hamill, John Blanchard, Thomas Orbison, J. H. Orbison, Will Furst, Harry Keller, Joseph Rhoads, Eliot Lane and Chas. Bannard. Mr. Samuel Hamill was the victor and Miss Ashbridge, a guest of the Misses Valentine, presented the prize—a beautiful cigar case.

Letter List.

List of unclaimed letters remaining in the post office at Bellefonte, Centre Co., Pa., Aug. 23, 1886:

John D. Angery, Edwin E. Bressler, Mrs. Abbie Bond, Harry Cohen, Mrs. Henry Crider, Mrs. Annie Galge-2, Mary E. Grossman-2, S. B. Hunter, Daniel Kline, Maurice Miller, Mrs. Frank Milkaie, John C. Powell, O. B. Rowlett, Mrs. Sarah Rhone, Potter Tate, Irwin W. Tute, Miss Jennie Warner.

Persons inquiring for letters named in the above list will please say advertised.

JAS. H. DOBBINS, P. M.

—Superintendent D. M. Wolf examined a class in Milesburg, on Saturday, composed of 36 persons who are applying for the schools of that place. The class was larger than usual. After the examination was concluded several speeches were made by spectators who were present. Mr. Cambridge, a teacher, spoke about professional reading. Mr. Barnhart related his experience as a school director, which, by the way, is unusually rich. He is 82 years of age (although he does not look or act near that old) and he was a school director 42 years ago Rev. Ague made the concluding address.

A Young Lady Bitten by a Dog.

Miss Gray, a daughter of Mr. George Gray, of Buffalo Run, was terribly bitten the other day by a large dog belonging to her brother. The young lady was going from her home to the home of her brother when she was attacked by the dog. It jumped against her, throwing her down and, fastening its teeth in her limb above the knee, tore the flesh frightfully. Dr. Tobin, of Stormstown, and another physician attended and cauterized the wound. The young lady is suffering greatly. We hope the dog has been shot.

—The Postoffice Department has determined to try a new experiment in the belief that it will offer the public additional facilities for correspondence by mail and will shortly issue a combined letter-sheet and stamped envelope of a pattern which can be readily understood and used. It is styled a "letter-sheet envelope," and is of only one denomination—two cents. For the present at least it is deemed expedient by the Postmaster-General to confine the issue of letter-sheet envelopes to a few of the principal postoffices.

—A large and very enjoyable meeting of the Beaver Home Club was held on Friday evening. Lawrence L. Brown was present to preside and filled the position of President with distinguished ability. The committees had not made much progress in their work, except the committee on music, which had present an efficient drum corps and had negotrated with a band for future occasions. The committee on uniforms reported and a uniform was adopted.

SPECIAL MENTION.

—The Nail Workers' Beaver Club, on Saturday night, gave themselves and their friends a most agreeable treat in the address which was delivered by Jno. G. Love, Esq. The gentleman spoke in his most fervid and eloquent style, discussing principally the tariff issue, and drawing his illustrations largely from iron as a commodity of manufacture and trade, in which the nail workers as well as this entire community are directly interested. His address, in this respect, was very thorough and convincing. He was tendered a vote of thanks.

Many people dislike to take bitter medicines, no matter how efficacious they may be; in Qunieptus these people have a vehicle in which any dose, however nauseating, may be taken. Quineptus has a most delicious taste, and while the medicine is rendered acceptable to the palate, it does not lose its own curative properties.

County Nominations.

The nominating committee of the Prohibition party met in Bellefonte on Friday and nominated county officers, as follows:

For the Legislature—Robert Glenn, of Ferguson township, and R. B. Hartman, of Millheim.

For Prothonotary—C. E. Murray, of Philipsburg.

J. ZEIGLER, Chairman.

The combination porportion and process in preparing Hood's Sarsaparilla, are peculiar to this medicine, and unknown to others.

—A crowd of people who went from Lock Haven, in the cars, on Sunday, to Bigler camp meeting, were almost suffocated by the press of the throng and, well-nigh famished for want of water. We don't know but what such a result serves people right who go to camp meeting on the Sabbath day.

—The aurora borealis was resplendent in the northern heavens Monday night. Instead of shooting and quivering as it sometimes does all the way to the zenith, it formed an archway extending above the horizon from east to west.

For rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Cramp and Colic there is no remedy superior to the genuine Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

—A one year old child of Mr. Edward Wasson, who lives near Dorsey Green's place at Buffalo Run, fell down stairs Sunday evening, breaking a leg. The child's limb was skillfully set by Doctor Tobin, of Stormstown.

Death of a Member of the Centre County Bar.

Monday morning, Samuel Durbin Gray, Esq., a young but highly respected member of the legal fraternity of this county, died, after a lingering illness, at the home of his wife's father, Rev. William Laurie. His death occured about 11.30 o'clock a. m. His disease was cancer of the stomach, which first made its presence known about a year ago and has ever since steadily but certainly consumed a noble and beautiful life.

Durbin Gray was the son of Mr. Samuel P. Gray, an honored citizen residing at Half Moon, this county. There also survives him a brother, Rev. Tarring Gray, who is located at Lewistown, and a sister, Mrs. Caleb Kephart, of this county.

We have not at hand the data to give a correct history of Mr. Gray, but it is closely connected with the affairs of this county and town during recent years. For about twelve years he has been connected as a practicing lawyer with the bar of this place, and has filled several positions of responsibility, among which was the office of treasurer of the borough, to which he was several times elected, by the Republican party, without any opposition. He was serving in that capacity when his illness compelled him to relinquish it, Mr. Chas. F. Cook being appointed in his place.

He was for a long time superintendent of the M. E. Sunday-school of Bellefonte, and was a prominent member of the Methodist church.

We know of no citizen of Bellefonte who had more entirely the thorough respect of all classes than Mr. Gray. He was a true, noble Christian, a beautiful example of a pure, consistent life.

The funeral was held on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Book of Books.

We have never heard in Bellefonte a sermon or platform lecture which excelled in vigor, thought and beauty the sermon by Rev. Dr. Monroe in the Methodist church, Sunday evening. This is the more remarkable when we remember that it was his third sermon delivered that day. The congregation was very large.

His text was taken from the third chapter of II Timothy, 14th to 17th verses. In beginning the sermon he said the greatest question of the age is: What is the origin of man, of matter and of the Bible? To learn the origin of the Bible is most important, for if that be known the origin of the others can be learned from it. Rev. Monroe spoke fifty-eight minutes, adding argument to argument in proof of the authenticity and inspiration of the Holy Word. Its age, its remarkable preservation; the fact that it gives the only rule of moral government; the exalted ideas of God entertained by men who wrote 4,000 years ago; its perfect accord with all ascertained facts in science; the fact that it is composed of 66 books written by 45 different writers in all conditions of life—kings, herdsmen, poets, shepherds, prophets, a tent maker, etc.—formed his themes, upon which he elaborated with vividness of description and force of illustration. His sermon concluded with an ascription to the Grand Old Book, which was so beautiful and effective as to bring tears to the eyes and draw forth many exclamations of praise from the congregation. We could have listened, with pleasure, an hour longer.

—We relate the following incident only as an illustration of the effect that fright may have at times upon people and we do not wonder that it does in some instances, prove fatal, although it fortunately did not in this instance. On the Hoy farm along the Buffalo Run railroad a cow became fastened between the guards on the railroad track. The lady knew the animal could not escape and she saw the train approaching. She succeeded in flaging the train and the railroad employes extricated the cow. But the lady was so frightened by the probability that the cow would be killed right before her eyes that she could not move or speak for some time and seemed to be perfectly paralized. In an hour or so she recovered the use her of limbs and speech, although she will remember the occurrence with horror for a long time.

—We went to the festival given by the ladies of the United Brethren Church Friday evening, in the vacant store room near Kirks' drug store. We fondly hoped that we would be the only editor there and would have a monopoly of cake, ice cream, pretty girls and such delicacies. But Editors Tuten, Furey and Bible came in about the same time and sat down at the same table. As a consequence the ladies— out of politeness, of course— had to serve them, too. It was frightful to see how those editors caused the raspberry ice cream to disappear. We had to stop eating just to watch them. The refreshments were first class and we hope the ladies had dozens of customers who could eat just as much as those editors— and pay for it, too.

—Mr. Jacob Roup, the old gentleman who received severe injuries last week while riding on the construction train of the Buffalo Run railroad, died at his home near State College on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. We regret to hear of the sad and unlooked-for result of his injuries. He was buried Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

On the Wrong Train.

The fact was demonstrated on Friday morning in this place that it is desirable to have a man at the railroad station to inform the public which train to take. Of course, this is not necessary for citizens of the town, who are familiar with all the trains, but for strangers departing from town, who know only the time for departure of their train. This is especially necessary at half-past nine o'clock in the morning when the mail train, east, and the Lemont train are both near the station at the same time. The Lemont pulls in and at once switches onto another track. Immediately afterwards the mail train arrives and waits six minutes. While it is waiting the Lemont train moves to the roundhouse. A Philadelphia gentleman, Friday morning, seeing the Lemont train start at the time for the departure of his train at once jumped on, overcoat and atchel in hand, and was taken to the round house. Meanwhile, his friends, who knew of his mistake, ran after the train to get him back again. There was not time for him to return the entire distance before his train started, but the engineer was obliging enough to stop the train and let him on. When we think of it we can imagine how easily such a mistake can be made by a stranger.

Bellefonte Academy.

The Fall Session of the Academy will open on Wednesday, September 8th.

The School of Primary Studies will be under the charge of MRS. E. M. ROBERTS.

The School of English Language, Moral Science and History will be in charge of

MISS JENNIE M. GEHRET.

The School of Music, Modern Languages and Literature under the care of MISS EMMA S. HUGHES.

The School of Ancient Languages, Chemistry and Drawing will be under the charge of

JAMES R. HUGHES.

The School of Mathematics, Book-Keeping and Philosophy will be under the supervision of the Principal,

J. P. HUGHES.

The united aim of the instructors will be to furnish a wide range of studies for young ladies and gentlemen, so as to give them a complete and liberal education, fitting them thoroughly not only for our best colleges, but also for any position of usefulness in society to which they may be appointed.

Pupils from abroad may find boarding in the town at reasonable prices.

For boarding and tuition at the Academy per week, pupils are charged five dollars.

—The North Carolina Troubadours promise to give entertainments on the 1st and 2d of September unlike any ever before given. The conception of the troupe is new and original, and it is expected to "take" wonderfully wherever it goes. It is the truth that no expense has been spared in organizing it. The fact that Prof. Charles Nan is the musical instructor ensures the success of that part of it. The music will be artistic and beautiful and the finest voices to be found among the colored people of the country have been engaged by Mr. McMillen. The practice is very thorough and critical and the results cannot but be grand.

—The party that visited Penn Cave of Tuesday was not large; indeed, it was very exclusive and numbered only four. If reports are correct, however, they consumed an enormous dinner. It is strange that four persons cannot carry enough refreshments along with them to appease their appetites, but must also create a famine in the hotel.

—Rev. Mr. Beach, of Baltimore, Md., will conduct the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. The meeting will be a general one, to which everybody is invited. As it is a long time since the Association has held a general public meeting, doubtless the attendance will be large.

—Hon. L. A. Mackey, of Lock Haven, one of the vice presidents of the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society, has placed us under obligation for a copy of the premium list for 1886, with a handsome map of the buildings and grounds of the State Fair.

—We regret to learn that Mr. Henry Powers, of Lamb street, has been stricken with apoplexy, and his condition is considered critical. P. S.—Mr. Powers died Wednesday. The funeral will be on Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

—Many people are taking advantage of the very favorable combination offer made by the REPUBLICAN of the Philadelphia Press one year free. The offer is still open.

—Rev. Dr. Bird, of Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa., will officiate in St. Johns Protestant Episcopal church next Sunday, and will probably officiate on the following Sunday, September 5.

—Mrs. John H. Barnhart and family, return their sincere thanks to the people of Bellefonte and vicinity, for kindness shown them during their bereavement.

—A few nights ago, at the home of Jno. Ardell, Jr., a night blooming cereus plant entertained several delighted spectators, by displaying a lovely blossom.

THERE seems to be a fatality about Sunday railroading, and the profits of traffic on the Camden and Atlantic Railroad, last Sunday, were completely obliterated by a collision between a newspaper train and an excursion train, neither of which should have run on such a day. Several persons were injured and the cars demolished.

THE Anarchist gangs are holding meetings and denouncing the Chicago Court and jurors. So long as they confine themselves to the expression of their opinions they can go ahead to the full extent of their wind power, but the authorities have their eyes on them and if they proceed to overt crime they will find themselves in trouble.

—There are still a few people in Centre county who have not taken advantage of the offer made by the REPUBLICAN of the Philadelphia Press one year free. To such we can say the offer is still open.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Works through the blood, regulating, toning and invigorating all the functions of the body.

Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

RAYNHAM, MASS., Aug. 12, 1878.

C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen— * * * * I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my body was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had any number of doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your cook books, and in reading it I found many people testifying to cures from the use of your Sarsaparilla and Olive Ointment. I felt forced to try it, although I had seen many things advertised that never did me any good. I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.

I am gratefully yours,
EDGAR F. WHITMAN.

Biliousness, Sick Headache.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gents—Please send me by express two bottles HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA and a few Cook Books for distribution. Your preparation has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one-half teaspoonful at a dose, and has not been so well for five years as now. She found that within a week after taking it she felt very much better, and is now entirely free from those severe headaches. She has not taken any of any account since last spring, and what little she had is lent to do some others some good, and we must have it in the house.

Yours truly,
HOMER B. NASH.

Farm Implements, and Fertilizers.

FARMERS SUPPLIES!

PLOWS.

Thorough plowing and pulverization of the soil is the foundation upon which the successful farmer builds his prosperity. To accomplish this, the character of the plow becomes a matter of the first importance. We present the

to our farmer friends with the assurance that it is not a new invention; nevertheless, it embodies all the improvements known to plow manufacturers. It has an established and enviable reputation, of MANY YEARS STANDING, as being the best bevel land side plow now in use. We assure our friends that a BEVEL LAND SIDE PLOW is superior to any straight land side plow.

The ROLAND CHILLED PLOW is manufactured of the best material, and is of the most perfect workmanship. The parts subject to wear are so chilled as to give strength as well as durability.

Its construction warrants light draft, and it runs so steady that a boy who can drive the team can man the plow—either for two or three horses—and execute the best mechanical plowing.

It will clean or scour in any soil from the start. It is furnished with solid or slip-pointed shares for ordinary or deep plowing. It is equally a successful plow in soft, hard or gravelly soil, and will turn a furrow up hill as complete as on the level ground.

We invite a critical examination of the construction of this plow as well as a thorough test in plowing.

We offer it for sale at remarkably low prices, and on liberal terms.

We keep a stock of shares and other parts for the OLIVER and SYRACUSE Chilled Plows.

CULTIVATORS.

are the farmers favorite, and need no commendation from us. We are the authorized agents for their sale in this part of Centre county. The CHAMPION is the new Hench walking cultivator, a remarkably neat and well constructed implement, and is a credit to the skill and workmanship of these leading cultivator manufacturers. We invite those in want of cultivators to inspect those on exhibition at our store. We can assure our friends that there are no other cultivators in the market equal to the HENCH.

One-horse Cultivators and Shovel Plows that defy competition in prices.

HAY RAKES.

We are selling the

CHAMPION

horse hay rake for $16.50, and a better rake for $17.50. We sell the hay rake, which is the best hay rake in the world, at astonishingly low prices.

TIGER SELF-DUMP

HAY TEDDERS.

The large crop of grass now growing, will be hard to handle unless farmers use hay tedders. The

BURDICK

HAY TEDDER is the BEST.

HAY FORKS! Double Harpoon Hay Forks. Price, $1.25 each.

GRAIN DRILLS.

We are the authorized agents for the sale of the CHAMPION and PENNSYLVANIA GRAIN DRILLS. These drills are complete in construction, and are guaranteed to sow grain, seed and fertilizers in the best farmer-like manner. We are prepared to furnish these drills at prices which will justify farmers in buying them. Farmers in want of drills will promote their interests by calling on us and examine the drills and prices for themselves.

Buggies and Platform Spring Wagons.

A customer after examining our spring wagons, a few days ago, said we had the best wagons for the least money he had seen in Centre county.

Auburn Road and Farm Wagons.

These wagons are made to our order; with steel skeins or steel axles, and we offer them to our customers with full confidence that they are the best wagons ever sold in this vicinity.

Fruit Evaporators. The outlook for a large crop of good fruit is very favorable. A fruit evaporator does not cost so much money, nevertheless, it can be made more profitable than a cider mill. An elegant opportunity for families of two or three boys to learn a new business and make some money. Call and examine the sample at our store.

FERTILIZERS.

We sell six grades of fertilizers; we assure the farmers of Centre county that we deal in no shoddy goods. In purchasing, the quality is our first consideration and we guarantee every grade of fertilizer we sell is of the quality represented.

CROCKERS' BUFFALO HONEST FERTILIZER

of which we are Sole Agents in this territory, needs no commendation at our hands. It has always realized to the farmer a fair equivalent for the money invested.

In addition to the above we have arranged for the balance of our stock with the Chemical Co of Canton, located in a suburb of the city of Baltimore, Md.

This company is composed of the Bakers of Baltimore, who formerly conducted the business in their own name and is a house of undoubted reputation for furnishing exactly what they represent.

From this company we obtain five grades of fertilizers—

Dissolved South Carolina Bone,
Dissolved South Carolina Bone and Potash,
Soluable Alkaline Bone Phosphate,
Resurgam Guano and Bakers Standard Guano;

either of which is of the highest standard of quality in its class.

We sold this brand of DISSOLVED SOUTH CAROLINA BONE or ROCK in the vicinity of the Pennsylvania State College last fall—1885—in competition with two other brands, all of which were analyzed at that institution. The Rock we sold proved to be fifty eight cents per ton more valuable than one of its competitors, and four dollars and forty eight cents per ton more valuable than the other, all of which were sold to the farmers at about the same price. This fact should induce farmers to buy fertilizers from dealers who know what they are selling and have the common honesty to sell what they represent.

We invite a careful inspection of the quality of the fertilizers we offer for sale, as well as the prices of the same, including such information as we are always prepared to furnish thereto.

HYDRAULIC CEMENT.

We have been induced to enter into the cement business, for the reason that MR. WILLIAM SHORTLIDGE'S long connection with the Water Works of Bellefonte gave him an extended opportunity to see the effects of using poor and standard cements. We can assure our customers that the cements in which we deal are of uniform quality and of the highest standard of excellence.

We carry a stock of AKRON, ROSENDALE "Hoffman Brand," and the ENGLISH PORTLAND.

The AKRON has been manufactured during the last 60 years and has been used in the construction of some of the most elaborate Railroad bridges and reservoirs in the United States. Thomas Collins, the well known railroad contractor, informs us that he has used thousands of barrels of it, who recommends it as being a most excellent article. The AKRON cement is being used in the construction of the Croton aqueduct, which will convey water forty two miles to the city of New York. This of itself, is a sufficient guarantee of its superior quality.

We sell the ROSENDALE cement "Hoffman Brand," which is so well known that it needs no commendation at our hands. We keep in stock the ENGLISH PORTLAND cement, the best artificial cement in the world.

We exercise our best judgment in purchasing stock, and spare no efforts to furnish what we represent and trust the community will appreciate our motives by favoring us with a share of their patronage.

There is a growing practice of venders calling on farmers to sell them their supplies, who succeed in obtaining higher prices for what they sell, with dinner and horse feed thrown in, than the same articles can be purchased of us at our store. We invite farmers to investigate this matter, examine articles and prices before making up their minds to purchase. Visitors are ALWAYS WELCOME whether they buy or not, and WE TAKE PLEASURE IN EXHIBITING WHAT WE HAVE TO SELL.

Come In and Talk With Us.

What the Unterrified Did.

HARRISBURG, August 18.—The democratic state convention was called to order by Chairman Hensel. R. Milton Speer, of Huntingdon county, nominated M. C. Herman, of Cumberland county, for temporary chairman, who was elected by acclamation. Messrs. Speer and Wagoner conducted Herman to the platform and on assuming the duties of the chair the latter made a brief address in which he lauded the democratic party as well as spoke a good word for President Cleveland, closing with the prediction of the nomination of the winning ticket. Committees on organization, resolutions and credentials were then appointed after which the convention adjourned to meet at 3 o'clock.

Upon reassembling the chairman of the committee on permanent organization announced Mortimer F. Elliott for permanent chairman. The report was adopted. Before announcing the duties of the chairman, Mr. Elliott briefly returned his thanks for the honor conferred and said the history of the democratic party began with the foundation of the government.

The convention then proceeded to the nomination of candidates for governor. L. F. Holtzman, without preface or remarks, nominated P. N. Guthrie; Hon. B. F. Meyers then presented the name of Col. Henry McCormick, of Dauphin; Hon. R. Milton Speer nominated William A. Wallace; Arthur G. DeWalt, of Lehigh, nominated Robt Emmitt Wright, of Lehigh; John Cummings, of Northumberland, presented the name of Hon. S. P. Wolverton; J. S. Robinson, of Philadelphia, that of Col. Robert Dechert, and ex-Congressman Maish, amid great cheering, nominated Chauncey F. Black. This closed the nominations and the balloting was proceeded with.

After the roll had been called and before the result could be announced, a stampede to Black, who had 168 votes, or within 13 of the nomination, was begun by a concerted movement on the part of the Philadelphia delegation, several delegates in which had voted for Wallace under cover to effect the stampede should it be necessary. The scheme succeeded, and when Lehigh's solid delegation came over from Wright to Black the contest was over and Black was the nominee. The result of the ballot was announced as follows:

Black	193
Wallace	129
McCormick	12
Dechert	1

Hon. Milton Speer at once moved that the nomination be made unanimous which was seconded and carried with a cheer, and Black was declared the nominee of the convention for governor.

The other nominees are Col. Robert Bruce Ricketts, of Luzerne county, for Lieut. Governor; J. Simpson Africa, for Secretary of Internal Affairs; J. W. Brennan, of Allegheny, for Auditor General; Maxwell Stevenson, for Congressman-at-Large.

Ohio Democrats Nominate a Ticket.

CONVENTION HALL, TOLEDO, Aug 18.—At the conclusion of Chairman Finley's speech the committee on rules reported and the report was adopted. Hon. J. McSweeny, of Wooster, then reported the platform. The platform was greeted with intense enthusiasm. Nominations being next in order, the following names were presented: For secretary of state, Henry Apthorp, of Ashtabula; William Bell, jr., of Licking; Boston G. Young, jr., of Marion; John McBride, of Stark.

The first ballot resulted Young, 229½; McBride, 219½; Bell, 156½; Apthorp, 64. Necessary to a choice, 333. There being no choice a second ballot was ordered. The second ballot proceeded to a close, but before the result was announced several counties changed to McBride. Some confusion resulted from an attempt to cast the solid vote of Hamilton county for him, but the chairman refused to change until the chairman announced it as the desire of that delegation. Cuyahoga, and other counties swung into line for McBride until it was seen that he was nominated. On motion, the rules were suspended, and McBride was nominated by acclamation.

On motion, Hon. M. D. Follett was re-nominated for judge of the supreme court. J. W. Cruikshank, of Miami county, was re-nominated for clerk of the supreme court. In a similar manner L. D. Brown was re-nominated for commissioner of common schools by acclamation. The ticket was completed by the nomination of Edward Nealus, of Hamilton county, for member of the board of public works.

Election of Officers.

CHICAGO, August 19.—John Fitzgerald, of Nebraska, and Hugh McCaffry, of Philadelphia, were placed in nomination for President of the League in America. Both nominations were seconded by a lot of the delegates. There was a great deal of confusion in the hall. Nearly every delegate was on his feet and impromptu meetings of State delegates were begun. The voting then began, the result being, Fitzgerald, 703; McCaffry 244. Handkerchiefs, stage bunting, hats, umbrellas and every other object that could be readily grabbed by the excited delegates were hurled in the air. The applause was deafening. McCaffry congratulated Fitzgerald and moved that the election be made unanimous. It was carried with the wildest enthusiasm. Fitzgeral made a brief and and good humored speech, Eagan then stepped to the front of the platform and nominated Hugh McCaffry, of Philadelphia, for Vice President. McCaffry was unanimously elected and was given a storm of cheers. McCaffry here arose and said he could give very good reasons for not accepting. He begged, in all firmness, that he be released from accepting. Said he, "I am, sir, forced to make this declination." The convention acceded to McCaffry's wishes, and proceeded quickly to elect Rev. Father McHenna Second Vice President, and Mr. Mastery, of Baltimore, Third Vice President. Father O'Reilly was nominated by the convention, en masse, for Treasurer. The present Secretary was unanimously re-elected.

Ricketts will Accept.

WILKESBARRE, August 19.—Colonel R. Bruce Ricketts is in the wilds of North mountain about forty miles from here and away from any railroad, where he is busily engaged in looking after his timber lands. He undoubtedly does not know as yet that he has been nominated for lieutenant governor. The Associated Press is positively informed this evening by persons close to him that while he did not want to be nominated, yet if the nomination came to him, as it has, he could do nothing but accept it. It is almost assured that he will accept at the proper time.

Gallant Work of Alpine Guides.

GENEVA, Aug. 19.—News has just been received here of a gallant rescue of a party of tourists who were making the ascent of the Matterhorn and were caught in an avalanche. The rescue was made by a party of forty guides, who, by means of rope, ladder, etc., succeeded, after several hours hard work and almost superhuman efforts in digging out every one of the imprisoned tourists. Many of them, however, were badly frostbitten. The rescued and rescuers were given an ovation upon their arrival at Zermott, a town nine miles distant from the scene of the accident.

Briefs.

CHICAGO, August 19.—A special dispatch from Cranberry Centre, Wis., says: During the last two weeks over 10,000 acres of cranberry marsh and timber land have been burning in Jun eau county. The fires are in check now, but not entirely out. Two small districts, two miles square, is all the cranberry land left in this county. One of these is on Silver Creek, near the town of Mathers, and the other is at Cranberry Centre. Many farmers have had their homes burned and stock destroyed. Thousands of tons of hay have been consumed.

BALTIMORE, August 19.—William H. League, aged 15, shot himself in the head with a cat rifle this afternoon. He was at the house of some relatives, and while playing remarked that he was tired of life and walking into a shed in the rear of the premises, fired the shot which it is thought will be mortal.

PITTSBURG, August 19.—Four masked men entered the house of Farmer William Manning, in Shenango township, this morning and at the point of a revolver compelled the old gentleman to give up $3,000 which he collected yesterday.

WASHINGTON, August 19.—The acting secretary of the treasury this afternoon issued a bond call for fifteen million of three per cent. bonds. It will mature October 1.

NIAGARA FALLS, August 19.—Graham successfully navigated the whirlpool rapids this afternoon with his head protruding from the barrel. James Scott, a fisherman of Lewiston, attempted to do the whirlpool this afternoon in a cork suit. His dead body was picked up at Lewiston one hour later.

CHESTER, Pa., Aug. 18.—The Democratic county convention at Media today nominated C. D. Dickinson and Andrew Tesborn for the legislature.

The Buried Miners.

HARRISBURG, August 20.—Governor Pattison has sent a letter to the officers of the Susquehanna coal company calling their attention to the complaints of the relatives of the twenty-six miners who were entombed last December at Nanticoke, and asking if the company can take further action toward the recovery of the bodies. The governor enclosed a letter addressed to him by the attorney of the relatives in which they petition for assistance. The governor is in daily receipt of letters from the bereaved relatives begging him to move speedily. The state geologist and Mine Inspector Williams in their reports to Governor Pattison both agree that further attempts at rescue would be useless.

A War Rumor from Texas.

LAREDO, Tex., August 20.—News having arrived here that the Mexican authorities have fortified a small town some fifty miles up the river and placed a detachment of sixty troops there, the commander of Fort McIntosh, Col. Bernard detailed a body of twenty men from this post, who left here yesterday, and will remain for the present at Palafax, opposite Pan, on this side of the river, as rumors had arrived to the effect that the Mexicans had crossed the river to this side. Palafal is a deserted mining town with but few inhabitants, but large ranches are adjacent to it and could easily be plundered.

The Fishery Disputes.

LONDON, August 20.—In the house of commons Sir J. Furguson, under secretary for foreign affairs, stated that negotiations for an amicable settlement of the Northwest Atlantic fishery disputes were proceeding between England, the United States and Canada. It was not intended by either the United States or England to appoint joint commissions to amend the treaty of 1818.

Fishing.

First matron (from Boston): Clara thought the party rather mixed to-day, but as a rule she is very fond of fishing."

Second matron (whose son has been snubbed by Clara): Yes, I see she is on the porch; but not getting very many bites at present.

There are various ways of ascertaining whether a gun is loaded or not, but the most popular way appears to be to blow down the muzzle, at the same time pressing the hammer back with the foot. The coroner keeps the statistics of this style of investigation.

"You may remember I spoke to you about having been afflicted with severe sick headaches. Well, some time ago I began using Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" in faint hope of relief. To my delight, and rather to my surprise, I have never had an attack since. How thankful I am I need hardly tell you. I heartily wish that all women tortured in this way knew how certain and pleasant a cure "Favorite Remedy" is. Sarah J. Woodruff, Newburg, N. Y.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetation remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after testing its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

—Girls who play tennis are said to acquire a peculiar strut, which is awkwark, but fashionable.

—The evenings are cooler and two persons can now swing in a hammock with considerable comfort.

—The moon rose in a clear sky Wednesday evening looking as large as a wagon wheel and as red as fire.

—One of the windows in the new M. E. church in Tyrone will be a memorial to the late Rev. J. S. McMurray, D. D.

—The editor of the Philipsburg Ledger intimates that the louder a pianist can make a piano howl the better performer he is.

—Next Sunday evening Rev. D. S. Monroe, D.D., will preach about the Bible and tell why it should be our rule of life and conduct.

—An appearance of inexpressible sadness is seen on every Democratic countenance when he (the owner of the countenance) contemplates defeat for his party in November.

—The second game, played on Thursday afternoon between the Little Tycoons and the Black Diamonds, was hotly contested. Nine innings were played, at the end of which the score was 17 to 17.

—On Saturday night, the 14th, a barn belonging to Judge Munson, of Philipsburg, was destroyed by fire. Among the contents destroyed were thirty-five tons of hay and 111 dozen sheaves of rye.

—Wm. Yearick, of Madisonburg, returned from his trip through the west last Thursday. He was to Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, where he visited friends and reports a very interesting journey.

—The Reformed Ladies' Mite Society, of Aaronsburg, will give an entertainment in the old church next Saturday evening. The programme will consist of music, recitations and dialogues. Madam Jarley will exhibit her comic wax works.

—The Spring Mills band continued their pleasing serenades in Bellefonte Friday morning and included the Watchman and Republican offices in the places they visited. The performers number thirteen. They have been organized only about a year.

—All young ladies should learn to whistle. The music of whistling is just as pleasant as singing and the position in which the lips are placed to perform the best whistle greatly improves the lines of beauty of the mouth—makes it resemble a rosebud.

—Mr. David A. Lucas, of Roland, invited his friends to an old-style grubbing party, which occurred on Thursday. The party applied themselves very faithfully to the work of grubbing, interspersing it with an excellent dinner and supper, and concluding with a dance in the evening.

—The mail train east Thursday morning was very late, as it waited for connection with trains on the main line. Its lateness was somewhat provoking because of the fact that many persons felt more than the usual desire to see their morning papers to obtain news from the convention.

—Wilson Coal, who is employed as blacksmith in John Fisher's carriage shops, at Rebersburg, met with a painful accident a few days ago. While he was hammering a red hot iron a small piece flew into his eye and cut the eye ball. The probabilities are that the sight of the eye is destroyed.

—The Challenge Cornet Band of Spring Mills, tendered the editor of the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN a very enjoyable serenade at the latter's residence on Thursday evening. It was greatly enjoyed by the editor and his family. The band plays excellently and has in it performers of much ability.

—There must be an unusual number of people roaming in the vicinity of Coalville who like to stop to play cards, drink beer, etc. We have heard the assertion repeated several times that such is the case, and some of the owners of property are putting up notices forbidding any one to enter their premises.

—While we walked out the Lewistown pike on Thursday morning we noticed down at the base of the declivity, beneath a tree, an old man and woman. They had built a fire and were preparing a breakfast. Both were respectable looking and the silver hairs denoted that they were aged and feeble. The questions came in our mind: Are they without a home? Are they forced to lead the life of tramps?

—A serious accident occurred on the Buffalo Run Railroad on Wednesday. The construction train was making its regular trip over the road. Rails were piled crossways in the cars and behind them rode three employes and one old gentleman named Raupt, who was merely taking a ride. The pile of rails, shaken by the motion of the cars, fell over in the direction of the men. The old gentleman was crushed so badly that it is feared he will not live. His home is in the vicinity of State College. A man named O'Leary, of this place, was injured and also the water boy, whose name is Hastings. We do not know the name of the other man who was hurt, although none of them except Raupt is considered to be dangerously injured.

Recent Social and Other Events at Howard.

HOWARD, Pa., August 16.

On Friday of last week the young folks of Howard and vicinity had quite a pleasant social gathering at Mr. Nelson Askey's, near Howard.

On Friday afternoon the older friends of Mr. R. J. Tipton met for a social chat and supper, and in the evening the young folks from near Howard met at the Tipton house for a social party, which we believe, they all enjoyed very much. These are steps in the right direction for making our folks more sociable, and we would suggest more of the same gatherings soon to follow, which would certainly infuse additional cheerfulness.

On Saturday some of our people made a trip to Penn Cave.

The same evening our cornet band went to Jacksonville to play for the Presbyterian festival, which, we are informed, was a grand success.

On Saturday at 2 o'clock the personal property of J. W. Gardner, deceased, was disposed of at public sale, at his late residence in Howard, Mr. Samuel Brickley, of Howard, being the crier.

This locality is very much in need of rain. The corn and late potatoes have suffered greatly already, and if rain does not come soon, the failure of these crops, we are told, will be almost total.

On Saturday afternoon and evening, August 21, there will be a festival at Howard for the benefit of the M. E. church of that place. The Howard Cornet Band will favor the occasion with some of their choice music. Refreshments such as ice cream, cakes, fruits, etc., will be served, and for drinks there will be nothing stronger than ice water and lemonade. The public are cordially invited to be present, aiding in the enjoyment and profit of the evening.

ALERT.

An Elegant Social Event.

The german given Wednesday evening by Miss Brockerhoff was the most charming affair of the season. It was led by Mr. Joseph Brockerhoff and Miss Grace Kensing. The favors were many and displayed a great deal of taste. The ladies' costumes were beyond description. Twenty couples danced the german and many looked on. Those present from a distance were the Misses Simpson, Miss Barrows, Miss Kensing and Mr. Simpson, Lock Haven; Miss Smith and Mr. Kratzer, of Clearfield; Miss McAleer, of Pittsburg; Miss Moore, of Conchohocken; Mr. and Mrs. Burnside, of Howard; Mrs. Calloway, of Columbus, Ohio; Mr. Fay and Mr. Lovell, of Altoona; and Mr. Hagerman, of Reading.

The figures were very beautiful, among which were the "Flower Girl" and the "Taper" figures. Mrs. Burnside was the lucky one in being the Flower Girl in that figure. In the Taper figure the lights were extinguished and each lady was presented with a lighted taper, which was blowed out by the gentleman who favored her with a waltz. The growing darkness was very effective.

The refreshments were of the choicest description and the music excellent, being rendered by Brof. Dauer's orchestra, of Lock Haven. It broke up at a late hour, it being a very enjoyable affair and reflected great credit on the hostess.

—Gentlemen, please have some mercy on the spring and fall overcoats. You wore them many months during the cold season and there is a long period before you to use them as a protector from the rigorous climate. Then, to haul them out and make them do service on a morning like that of Thursday is great cruelty to overcoats. They are faithful to you; they have endured much service without wearing out, and you might exert just a little gentleness and consideration in your treatment of them. Don't try them beyond their strength and do not provoke them beyond the limit of their patience, else they may turn and rend either you or themselves. Besides a real respectable overcoat has about it some aristocracy of feeling. It don't like to associate with a straw hat. It prefers a nobby felt or a blossoming beaver. These were its sentiments this morning when several young gentlemen brought it from its summer seclusion and gave it an unseasonable prominence.

Imprisoned Beneath Heavy Timbers.

A thrilling accident secured a few days ago on the property of Mr. A. B. Rishel, at Oak Hall. Mr. Rishel was not present at the time of the accident. His men were engaged in putting grain in his barn and the weight was too great for the timbers, which are old and somewhat decayed. Suddenly the end of the structure where the grain was being stored came tumbling down. No warning was given, but with the first crack the timbers fell and imprisoned the horses beneath them. The alarm was given and many neighbors turned out to help in extricating the animals. Mr. Rishel says that when he arrived he thought his horses were dead and would have sold them all for a dollar at that time. Very quickly the grain and timbers were removed and the animals were found uninjured, with the exception of a few bruises. Their escape from serious injury or death seems miraculous. It is also wonderful that the who were unloading the grain escaped unhurt. They jumped out of the way just in time to avoid being struck and perhaps terribly injured or killed.

How Iron Ore is Mined at Scotia.

Among the largest operators in iron ore in this county are Carnegie Bros. & Co., at Scotia. The best features of their method of getting out the ore will be adopted by the Bellefonte Iron Company. A description of it is entertaining, and we condense what we present below from a long article on Scotia and her chief industry in the Altoona Tribune:

The mines, of which there are at present two in operation, are located about a quarter of a mile from the works. Two large excavators, each having a capacity of 600 tons of material per day and each excavator operated by five men doing the work of fifty, are in use at the mines. The material, a ton of which is taken from the side of the cut at a scoop, is dropped into little cars, the contents of the excavator being sufficient to fill a car. Twenty-four of these cars can be filled in seventeen minutes. In this operation the cars are handled by two boys, each using a mule to haul the empty car to the dump and to return it, loaded, on another track.

Their movements, as well as the movements of all others connected with this part of the work, are necessarily quick and as evenly timed as though they were all parts of some huge clock work. Presently, a little engine, guided, by a master hand at the throttle, comes speeding around the sharp curve of the narrow track, and, almost as quick as thought, hooks on to the loaded train and then, with a puff and a snort, shoots away around by a wide detour and then clambers up the incline to the works. The train stops and we are under the roof of one of the largest and most complete ore washers in the State, provided with the latest and best improved machinery and driven by powerful engines.

Two of the loaded cars, having been run into a cradle above, are tilted over and the material from both dropped down into a pit, the bottom of which is crossed by heavy grate bars, having three and three-fourths inch openings. The washing begins at once. The material is flooded with water in this pit from large sprinklers at the side. The larger pieces, that is anything larger than three and three-fourths inches, are hooked out and the ore loaded ready for shipment. That procured in this way is the very small proportion. The material that drops between the bars passes to another set. Here anything larger than two and a half inches is taken up and carried back to the rear of the building, and as it passes along on the conveyors a line of men stand at each side picking out the mud balls and the flint. Anything between five-eights of an inch and two and a half inches is broken and reduced to the smaller size mentioned, by a process of rolling. This five eighths inch material, from which the large part of the mud and sand has already been separated and floated outside, then passes into what is called shaft washers with iron shafts throughout. This is a conical shaped apparatus perforated all around. With this and another machine the small particles are agitated and the flint finds one outlet and the ore another. With the machinery in use they get from these washers lump, picked and jig ore. A plan is in contemplation there at present by which the hand picking can be done away with and then everything under the three and three-fourths inch will be crushed and jigged.

The mud is floated with the refuse water through elevated drains into what is called the mud dam. The water is drawn off from time to time until at present there is a deep depost of mud covering a wide area lying there. The flint and other foreign material is dumped on huge piles nearer the works. The sand, the largest part of which is retained in the washing, is saved and finds a ready market, being of a fine sharp grit. There are hundreds of tons of the gravelly flint that is refused by the jigging piled up that seems to be of no earthly use, and yet, if properly used, would make magnificent roads.

Where it Looks Lively.

The men at work on the site of the proposed plant of the Bellefonte Iron Company make it look decidedly lively. A new roof is being put on the blacksmith shop, the old office is being repaired for use and the present office will probably be converted into a dwelling house. Across the road from the office the men are engaged in getting out stone. Further up the creek, just beyond the furnace, the work of changing the channel of the creek is in progress. The ground has been broken for the new furnace and at other points in that vicinity men are engaged in cleaning away the debris which has collected.

—Isn't it strange that the Democrats should put a Black man on their ticket for Governor? Perhaps they imagine that by so doing they will attract some Negro votes to him. We believe Black to be a very nice man, but oh, wont it be dreadful when the news goes over into Penns and Brush valleys! Democratic papers, in giving the news, will do well to say nothing about the color of their candidate.

—Property owners in Altoona are protesting against the electric light poles in front of their dwellings, and one indignant resident, on Thursday, carried his protest so far as to march out with an axe and cut down the pole.

How the News is Received.

Nothing but disappointment was visible on the countenances of our Democratic friends when the personnel of the Democratic State ticket was telegraphed to Bellefonte.

Wallace was the universal choice here, and such a man as Black caused mourning at once—black being a mourning color in this country. And when the name of Africa was added it seemed the last straw to break the camel's back.

Ricketts was a good soldier, but he is the only soldier on the ticket. The other two men are almost unknown and the more that is learned of them the greater is the disappointment.

The platform is remarkable for what it does not say. It presents no line of party policy, but is a mere piece of condemnation of Republicanism.

"I shall vote the Republican ticket!" exclaimed a strong Democrat. "It offers to us a future of prosperity, while my own party takes away what there now is that is worth having."

Another Event in Social Life.

A series of three social entertainments terminated on Thursday evening with a brilliant german given by Miss Hale, daughter of Dr. E. W. Hale. The series began with Miss Wilkinson's card party on Tuesday evening. The second was Miss Brockerhoff's german on Wednesday night. Some among the guests attended all of these entertainments, each of which lasted until past the witching midnight hour.

The dancing began Thursday evening at a fashionable hour, continuing with waltzes and square dances until 12 o'clock. A very excellent orchestra composed of Prof. Girod, of Milesburg, and Messrs. Lyon and Bierly, furnished music. During the midnight hour refreshments were served, after which the german, proper, began and was prolonged until about 3.30 a. m., being very enjoyable.

Among the strangers present were Miss Trumbull, of Connecticut, who is a guest of the hostess; Miss Muir, of Conshohocton, who came with Miss Jackson; Miss Smith, of Clearfield, with Miss Thomas; Miss Bessie Ashbridge, with Miss Valentine; and Mr. and Mrs. Barnard, with Mrs. Reuben Valentine.

The society of Bellefonte was largely represented. The beautiful toilets worn by the ladies' added to the beauty and success of the affair.

—William Gardner, of Lock Haven, who is employed in Crider's mill at Glen Harris, was painfully injured on Wednesday. A steel attachment called a socket, on one of the saws, flew off with great violence and struck him on the fleshy part of the right arm below the shoulder. As it is sharp it entered the flesh, only the end of it sticking out. It is the shape of a half moon and was an exceedingly ugly thing to pull from his arm. The wound did not bleed very much, but was painful. He returned to his home in Lock Haven for treatment.

J. D. Rishell, formerly of Harris' drug store, this place, and now a resident of Greensburg, Pa., sends us a copy of the Greensburg Daily Record, giving an account of a street railway to be established in that place. Greensburg is not a large place—not much larger than Bellefonte—and she hasn't possessed a daily paper near so long a time. We suppose that Mr. Risbell thinks, that if Greensburg can afford such an enterprise as a street railway, Bellefonte also ought to have one.

—Gen. James A. Beaver can, if he will try, give the Democrats a very Black eye. Quite easily Mr. William T. Davies can fix it to shut out Robert Bruce Rickett. A. Wilson Norris, a soldier of the war, can send Mr. Brennan sprawling on the floor. Handsome Thomas J. Stewart, also a soldier lad, will make J. Simpson Africa feel extremely sad. To Mr. Maxwell Stevenson, Edwin S. Osborne will say, "Get off the track, my little man, for I am coming that way."

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, schr, Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N. Y., had been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep, and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the soreness in his breast. His children were similarly affected and a single dose had the same happy effect. Dr. King's New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner.

—Guiswite & Co. of Rebersburg, says the Millheim Journal, have suspended work on their saw mill, as the mill needs some repairs, on account of the bursting of the cross cut saw. It is almost a miracle that the accident did not prove fatal to some of the hands. Pieces of the saw were hurled in every direction with terrific force, and passed closely by their heads. One of the pieces struck a two inch plank, cutting it almost in two.

For fifteen years I was annoyed with severe pain in my head and discharges into my throat from catarrh. My sense of smell was much impaired. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm I have overcome these troubles.—J.B. Case, St. Denis Hotel, New York.

It is now about five years since I first began selling Ely's Cream Balm, and from the time of its first introduction there has been a growing demand for it, and so far it has given very great satisfaction to my customers. I consider it a catarrh remedy of genuine merit. —A. B. Burns, Druggist, Montrose, Pa.

—If the picture of Chauncey Forward Black, printed in the Philadelphia Press of Thursday, don't kill off that gentleman at once, he is certainly proof against almost anything. Although he is a Democrat, we can hardly believe him to be that ugly. The idea of electing such a creature governor of the State is appalling.

AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every house-owner, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $600 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed, and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer, to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money. KENNER MANUFACTURING CO.,

THE NARROW ESCAPE

Of a Massachusetts Engineer.

Sleep after fatigue and health after disease are two of the sweetest experiences known to me. Fourteen years is a long time to suffer, yet Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., had led a miserable life for that period through the presence of stone in the bladder. He did obtain temporary relief, but nothing more. Last January he called on Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who said, after an examination: "Mr. Lawler, you have stone in the bladder. We will first try DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY before risking an operation." A few days later the following letter

DALTON, Mass., [illegible].

DEAR DR. KENNEDY: The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. PETER LAWLER.

Dr. Kennedy now has the stones at his office, and they are sufficient, formidable to justify the claim that KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY is the leading specific for stone in the bladder. In his letter Mr. Lawler mentions that FAVORITE REMEDY also cured him of rheumatism. The subjoined certificate tells its own story:

OLD BERKSHIRE MILLS,
DALTON, Mass., April 27, 1882.

Mr. Peter Lawler has been a resident of this town for the past seventeen years, and in our employ for fifteen, and in all these years he has been a good and respected citizen of this town and community. He has had some chronic disease to our knowledge for most of the time, but now claims to be, and is, in apparent good health.

Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" (Rondout, N. Y.)—It is not a mere soother, temporarily, of pain, but by its alterative action purifies the blood, restores a healthful condition to the diseased organs, and even dissolves and causes the expulsion of gravel and stone from the kidneys and bladder. The testimony of hundreds who have been cured by it vouches for this.

In Memory of Mr. S. Durbin Gray.

The late S. Durbin Gray, Esq., was a lawyer by profession. He began to read for the legal profession in the spring of 1865, with A. O. Furst, Esq., of this place, who is now the President Judge of the Centre-Huntingdon district. In May of 1867 he was admitted to practice, being then but 22 years of age.

During the twenty-one years since Mr. Gray has pursued his profession he has always been associated more or less intimately with his instructor, Judge Furst, who knew and loved him as a brother. None of his friends feel Mr. Gray's death more poignantly than does Judge Furst, who refers to his dead friend in words of highest admiration.

The notable characteristics of Mr. Gray, which were evinced in all his relations of life, were strict integrity, high honor and pure, unfaltering honesty. He was the soul of honor. In his profession he would make but few efforts to obtain clients, but when business was placed in his care he would attend to it in every detail with unswerving devotion. Opportunities which seemed to some men to be in the strict line of honor and of which no one could have complained if he had taken advantage of them, were spurned by him because some apparently insignificant detail was repellant to his sense of right. This gave him the reputation of being in a certain sense indifferent and independent, but an indifference and independence which drew men to him, as there were none whom our citizens more delighted to honor. In his examination of witnesses in court he resorted to none of the schemes which are so common to force witnesses to say more than they desire. Having gleaned from them the plain story of their knowledge of the case he was content—eternal justice demanded no more. In his transactions he was never known to take advantage of another. He defrauded no man, but did many services without asking for recompense. He was well read in the law and his judgment on legal points was uniformly correct.

His political faith was Republican. During political campaigns he took an active part in the canvass. But who has ever heard him say an unkind, uncharitable word of an enemy? The opponent's character was absolutely safe in his hand. Addressing himself to the real merits of the question, he employed argument and reason without appealing to passion, prejudice or emotion. The hearers were convinced that they were listening to a man who was incapable of demegogism.

In religious life, how firm and consistent, and yet how retiring. Though fitted for leadership, he shrank from taking a conspicuous part in any exercise. Modest and diffident, he distrusted his own powers, and yet he was never known to hesitate, on occasions when such testimony could be useful, to boldly avow his principles, and in a manner that always commanded respect.

Though he so long held an enviable position among men and diligently followed his profession he did not accumulate wealth—perhaps he never had what may be called a lucrative practice. There is said to be a height above this world where the discordant sounds of earth mingle in divine harmony, making music to which even angels pause to listen; so in the supreme peace of this man's soul the outward unrest, which to some is so disturbing in its influence, was checked by the command, "Peace, be still." The mirror-like surface of the ocean, undisturbed by a passing zephyr, is not more pleasant to look upon than it is to consider the triumph of the life of Durbin Gray in his resolve to live righteously, to deal justly and keep himself unspotted from the world.

His death was a fitting end to such a life. Months before the hour of dissolution he suffered and knew that death was near. With a calm eye he saw the approach of the one often called the King of Terrors. Arranging his earthly affairs with a consideration for others which surprised all, he folded his mantle about him and awaited the oncoming, which to him perhaps was surrounded by a halo of glory, because it was an entrance to a life far more congenial than any existence could be this side of Heaven.

Adapting the words of Paul H. Hayne, the noble poet of the South, to these sentiments we can write of him, that—

Now beyond the stars and the sun
He has followed Death on his way,
Till the pearl-white gates are won
In the calm of the central day.
Far voices of fond acclaim
Thrill down from the place of souls,
As Death, with a touch-like flame,
Uncloses the goal of goals.
And from Heaven of Heavens above
God speaketh with bateless breath—
My angel of perfect love
Is the angel men call Death!

MEETING OF THE BAR ASSOCIATION.

We quote as follows from the minutes of the meeting of the Bar Association, held on Monday afternoon, immediately after the adjournment of court:

Meeting of the Bar Association of Centre county, called for the purpose of passing resolutions of respect in relation to the death of S. D. Gray, Esq.

On motion of Hon. A. O. Furst, Hon. Adam Hoy was called to the chair.

On motion of J. L. Spangler, James A. McClain was elected secretary.

On motion of Col. D. S. Keller, a committee of five was appointed to draft proper resolutions of respect. The committee consists of Col. D. S. Keller, J. W. Gephart, C. M. Bower, John G. Love and Col. D. H. Hastings.

J. W. Gephart moved that when the Association adjourn it be to meet in the court house one hour before the time for the funeral and attend the funeral in a body.

On motion, the meeting adjourned.

JAMES A. McCLAIN,
Secretary.

August 23, 1886.

During the progress of the above meeting remarks were made by Judge Furst, Col. Keller and Judge Hoy, each one being highly eulogistic of deceased.

SAMUEL DURBIN GRAY.

A Minute of Respect Adopted by the Bar Association—Seven Brief Addresses Made by the Members.

Ex-Judge Adam Hoy called the Bar Association of Centre county to order Tuesday evening after it had convened, at 7:30 o'clock, in the Court House. He called on Col. D. S. Keller, chairman of the committee appointed to prepare the memorial, to report, who announced that the minute had been prepared and would be read by Col. D. H. Hastings.

That gentleman arose with the manuscript of the tribute of respect in his hand, and prefaced its reading by a personal tribute. He said he had first met the subject of this minute in the year 1867 when he came here a stranger. Geo. M. Yocum and Durbin Gray were his first acquaintances. During four years he and Mr. Gray roomed together and sat at the same table in the hotel. With his customary eloquence and feeling, Mr. Hastings dwelt upon what he conceived to be the distinguishing attributes of the character of deceased, especially as he had seen him in his practice in court and in his Christian life. He read the committee's minute as follows:

"Samuel Durbin Gray departed this life on Monday, August 23d, 1886, at the residence of his father-in-law, Rev. William Laurie, D.D., in Bellefonte.

"He was born in Patton township, Centre county, on the 11th day of October, 1843, being aged at the time of his decease 42 years, 10 months and 12 days. His father, Samuel P. Gray, of Patton township, his mother, one brother, Rev. G. T. Gray, and a sister, Mrs. Caleb Kephart, of Fillmore, survive him. It may not be improper to say, although of the living, that the subject of this sketch spent his childhood and youth in the midst of Christian influences where every parental instruction, impulse and example was of the sturdiest honesty and humblest piety. His early life was spent on his father's farm, and while there one year with him followed another with no variation. He was never a robust boy and although always willing, was not always able to take a full hand's share in the field. In the Winter season he attended the public school, where the foundations of his education were laid.

"In 1861 he entered the Academy at Pine Grove Mills, Centre county, where he remained some two years. He then entered Dickinson Seminary at Williamsport, Pennsylvania, where he completed his education.

"In 1865 he entered the law office of Hon. A. O. Furst, now President Judge, as a student at law, and was admitted to the bar April 29, 1867.

"He immediately commenced the practice of his profession in the office of his preceptor, and continued to do so down to the time of the commencement of his fatal illness. As a lawyer he was studious, painstaking and conscientious, and practiced his profession with the highest sense of honor toward his brethren at the bar, and with the greatest fidelity to his clients and the Court. He was eminently fair, honorable and frank in all his business and social relations. His word was equal to his written obligation and the quality of neither was ever questioned.

"In his social relations he was always the courteous and dignified gentleman, the sympathetic and interesting companion, the faithful friend. Careful of the feelings of others, he was never known to speak discourteously or harshly to any one, while he was always ready to extend a helping hand and invoke that charity "which suffereth long."

He won and for many years enjoyed the fullest confidence of the community in which he lived and died. He filled positions of trust and confidence, and they were sacredly held and maintained. For over four years he filled the office of borough Treasurer, and the last three years he was successively elected without opposition from any political party.

"In the church were exhibited, to a greater degree than in any other walk in life, his high character, his gentle and kindly disposition and his well-grounded faith in the Christian religion He was regular, faithful and enthusiastic in his attendance upon, and in the performance of his religious duties. For thirty years he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and for seven years was superintendent of the Sunday-school of that church of Bellefonte, only giving up the latter position when compelled to do so by the disease which eventually terminated his life.

"On the 16th day of December, 1885, he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Laurie, daughter of Rev. William Laurie, D. D.

"For almost a year past his health continued to fail. He had been a quiet, patient sufferer from cancer for a much longer time. He knew that death's approach was measured only by the steady, unrelenting growth of his disease, but he was patient, confident, trustful, and he entered the valley of the shadow of death in the full assurance of a blessed life beyond.

"He has left an example in his life and character worthy of emulation; and they who sorrow with us for his loss, may, with us take comfort in the thought that he lived not in vain.

"In his death we recognize the loss of one of the most faithful and honorable members of the bar, one of the useful and upright citizens of the community—a faithful husband, kind brother and a most dutiful son.

"To the bereaved relatives and friends of the deceased we tender our sincerest condolence and sympathy, and as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased we suggest that the bar attend his funeral in a body and wear the usual badge of mourning for a period of thirty days.

D. S. KELLER,
C. M. BOWER,
J. W. GEPHART,
D H. HASTINGS,
JNO. G. LOVE,
Committee.

Mr. Hastings moved the adoption of the minute and Jno. G. Love, Esq., arose to second it. The subject of it, he said, he had known since they were boys together, carried water and bound sheaves on the same farm. Again they were together at school.

Mr. Gray had but few confidential friends, but he often trusted Mr. Love with his confidence. Durbin Gray was perfectly true and reliable; he never took advantage of others. He was pure-minded and conscientious and his life was worthy of emulation Ever faithful to man and his God, his influence had a healthful effect. He alluded to the mysterious providence that ordains the removal of such a man, and said that we can only bow in submission.

J. L. Spangler, Esq., also paid his tribute, referring especially to the time when he sought admission to a fraternity which is older than the history of nations, to which he was welcomed by Durbin Gray, who showed himself to be a true friend. To that institution Mr. Gray showed the same faithfulness as to the bar or the church. Although so prominent in this fraternity yet it shows the excellence of Mr. Gray's character that he left no request that they show any special mark of attention at his funeral, but that he desired to be buried according to the simple rites of the church which he loved. How sublime was his life despite the fact that he did not achieve fame or fortune. Not a member of this bar who, notwithstanding his success, would not, at the gate of death, exchange his position for that of Durbin Gray.

Judge Furst asked pardon for adding to the remarks he had made at a former meeting of the association. He spoke especially of him, this time, as a Christian; of his attention to the little things that go to make up the true character—the true man. He also related an incident to illustrate his humility and diffidence.

Judge Jno. Orvis, had known Mr. Gray for a long time, but only ten years ago became well acquainted with him. He learned to admire him, not only for his fine qualities of heart, but also because he considered him unusually bright intellectually. He had much respect for his judgment and knew no member of the bar who made fewer mistakes.

Aaron Williams, Esq., added his tribute to those already given, in very feeling remarks.

The last address was made by Hon. James P. Coburn, who said that Mr. Gray's influence was not limited to Bellefonte, but extended through the county, and he at his home in Aaronsburg, had felt and rejoiced in its healthful effects. He believed that all in the county looked up to him.

The minute will be placed on the records of the court.

Wilbur F. Reeder, Esq., read a communication from Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., pastor of the M. E. church, inviting the Association to a memorial meeting to be held in the Methodist church next Sunday morning. The invitation was accepted, after which the meeting adjourned.

The Funeral Services.

The funeral services over the remains of Samuel Durbin Gray occurred at the Presbyterian parsonage Wednesday morning. Rev. Dr. Monroe, D. D., pastor of deceased, conducted the service, delivering a brief but beautiful address. A quartette of male voices rendered two appropriate musical selections. Rev. Dr. Hamill, of Oak Hall, and Rev. J. A Woodcock offered prayers. A handsome burial casket contained the remains and hundreds of people looked for the last time on the face of him who seemed to be only in a natural repose, but who was "asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep." Two magnificent floral gifts were the "Cross and Crown" from Constans Commandery, K. T., to which deceased belonged, and a "Broken Column" from the M. E. Sunday-school, of which he was long the superintendent. The services at the house and at the grave were exceedingly simple. The pall bearers were Judge Furst, Judge Hoy, W I. Fleming, F. P. Blair, Jno. G. Love and F. W. Crider.

Court Cullings in Hot Weather.

The August term of Court convened Monday morning at 10 a. m., Judge Furst presiding, with Associates Smith and Munson on the bench. A large number of petitions were presented and motions of various kinds made, keeping the time of the court thoroughly occupied till the time arrived for adjournment.

In the afternoon session lists of grand and traverse jurors were called over, quite a number of traverse jurors being absent. If the habit of jurors absenting themselves after being summoned to attend court is not corrected by the jurors themselves, by obeying the mandate of the court, some of the good and lawful citizens of Centre county will no doubt find themselves summarily dealt with for contempt of court, sometime in the near future.

Mr. S. S. Lyon was made foreman of the grand jury. District Attorney Heinle reports a large number of Commonwealth cases for trial at this court, in view of which the county is to be congratulated in having so able a man for foreman of the grand jury as Mr. Lyon. In fact, the grand jury as a whole is a body of unexceptionally good men.

The first case disposed of by the court was the case of commonwealth vs. W. S. Musser, for violation of liquor law, to which defendant plead guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of $10, costs of prosecution and ten days in the county jail.

A surety of the peace case between Wm. H. Campbell and a boy named Samuel Schroyer, in which the boy was required to pay a fine and costs of prosecution, entered security to keep the peace.

The grand jury returned a true bill in the case of Commonwealth against Simon Walker for assault and battery.

NOTES.

Among those who were admitted to practice in the courts of this county are Mr. Crosby, of Philipsburg, and Mr. W. E. Gray, of Benore. There is a coincidence in the fact of Mr. Gray being admitted to practice on Monday, that being the day when the connection of his relative, the late Samuel Durbin Gray, Esq., with the Centre county bar, was terminated by death. Thus the name of Gray will be continued as an active practitioner without interruption. From our acquaintance with Mr. W. E. Gray, we can predict for him a future of honor, eminence and fame. He has a wide and thorough knowledge of the law, superior natural abilities and is social and genial. His gift of oratory is a valuable aid and his mind is natural logical and correct in its conclusions. Just what his future intentions may be we are not informed, but he will probably remain for the present with Hastings & Reeder, with whom his legal studies were pursued.

The Second Day of Court.

In the case of the Commonwealth vs. Simon Walker for assault and battery on Mrs. Ada Irvin, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty and directed the county to pay the costs.

Commonwealth vs. Wm. P. Dehaas was the next case tried, wherein he was charged with f. and b. by Mary Ann James, of Eagleville. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Commonwealth vs. Wm. Hemphill, for keeping a gambling house; defendant plead guilty, was sentenced to pay $1 fine, costs and one year and eight months in the western penitentiary. Hemphill is an old man and lives in Philipsburg.

Same vs. Milton Crane for keeping gambling house; plead guilty and was sentenced to pay fine of $35, costs and imprisonment in county jail for one year.

Same vs. Justus C. Turner for f. and b. Defendant pleads guilty and was sentenced the usual sentence, and to give security to the overseers of Howard to prevent the child from becoming a charge to the township.

Same vs. Harry Crissman, for assault and battery on S. T. Dixon. Plead guilty and was sentenced to pay one dollar fine, costs and enter into his recognizance in the sum of one hundred dollars to keep the peace for one year toward all good citizens and especially toward S. T. Dixon.

In the case of same vs. George Traull, for similar offense on same party. The defendant was required to enter into his recognizance to keep the peace, etc.

Same vs. Seely Hordigan for larceny. Defendant plead guilty and was sentenced to pay $1 fine, cost and imprisonment in the county jail for 20 days.

Commonwealth vs. L. L. Bullock, of Snow Shoe, a breach of the peace case. It was brought by Agnes Armstrong and others because Bullock drew a revolver on them. He was under strong provocation, however, as the plaintiff had taunted him for working while others were striking. The costs were divided. The Judge advised Agnes not to encourage idleness and enjoined the defendant to give up the practice of carrying concealed weapons.

There is still considerable criminal business before the court to be disposed of which will occupy the term of the court for several days yet.

Personal Penetlings.

Mr. William Pearlstein spent Sunday in the ancient town of Lewisburg.

Rev. Mr. Beach, of Baltimore, Md., is a guest at the home of Mrs. Orbison.

Mr. Ed. Shrom, of Altoona, is spending a few days with his relatives here.

G. A. Harter, of Millheim, has gone to Minersville, West Virginia, to locate.

Mrs. Rev. Hall, of Honesdale, Pa., is a guest at the home of Mrs. J. W. Rhone.

Mr. James Nolan, of Washington, D. C., is visiting the Messrs. Ed. and Arthur Brown in this place.

Miss Madie Alport and Miss Mertie Gray, of Philipsburg are visiting Miss Jennie Burley of Tyrone.

Mr. Thomas Bradley, of New Market, Canada, who has been visiting his brother, Benjamin Bradley, departed Monday.

Miss Kate Bridge, a charming young lady from Clearfield, is a guest at the home of Mrs. David Weaver on Howard street.

Mrs. John G. Love recently spent several days at Snow Shoe and received much physical benefit by her residence there.

Mr. Swaveley, the foreman of the Centre Democrat, has returned from Row-an-oak, Virginia, and is at work at his usual duties.

Mrs. Titus, a resident of Louisville, Ky., is at present a guest at the home of her father, Mr. George Funk, at Mt. Eagle, this county.

Mr. Joseph Myers, of Gatesburg, while in Bellefonte last Saturday, favored this office with a call and also made himself very agreeable while here.

Mr. Irv. Speer now divides his time between Bellefonte and Tyrone, being occasionally engaged at the latter place in putting up electric light wires.

Miss Nellie Larimer arrived in Bellefonte on Monday from Davenport, Iowa, and is a guest at the home of her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. William Speer.

Rev. Dr. Laurie, pastor of the Presbyterian church, returned Thursday morning from the seashore. He was telegraphed for because of the increasing illness of S. D. Gray, Esq.

Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Etters and family have returned to town after several months spent in the country. They are again located in their pleasant home, on East Curtin street.

Rev. J. H. McGarrah, of Williamsport, on Friday morning, received a present of a handsome gold watch. It was the gift of his ministerial brethren of the Central Pennsylvania conference.

Among those who are at home again—at least for a time—is Mr. Olie Meek, brother of P. G. Meek, editor of the Watchman. During the past two years Olie has been engaged, most of the time, in Washington, D. C.

Miss Maggie Watt, of Rock Springs, came home on Friday from Chatauqua, where she has completed the literary and scientific course of studies. She visited in Bellefonte Friday night at the home of Mr. James Mitchell.

Mrs. Jacob Heylmun, of East Curtin street, recieved a telegram Monday announcing the serious illness of her mother, who lives in Ohio. She departed on the 5.20 p. m. train to visit her mother, who, we hope, is on the road to recovery.

Mr. Glasgow Reed, the agreeable clerk in Joseph A. Rankin & Son's insurance office, departed Saturday morning for his home in Clearfield and, later in the month, will attend the picnic of the Patrons of Husbandry in Williams Grove.

Mr. Gilbert White, son of Rev. Mr. White, of Milroy, is in town. Mr. White is a graduate of State College and we understand that he is doing honor to his alma mater, being now a professor in a Western college. He is quite young to fill a position of so much responsibility.

Among those who departed, on the train Monday morning were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Barnard, of Philadelphia, and Miss Ashbridge, of Downington, who have been guests at the home of Mrs. Reuben Valentine. Their presence here has been very delightful to all who have met them.

The Philipsburg Ledger must make a mistake when it says "Mr. Walter Bayard, of Bellefonte, arrived in town Saturday night on a purely business visit." Walter don't transact business on Sunday. If he had timed his visit on some other day we might have supposed that there was no alloy of other interests with the "business." But perhaps this is none of our business anyhow.

Prof. Geo. P. Beard, principal of the Central State Normal School, located at Lock Haven, spent a few hours of Thursday morning in town. He has been traveling during the past two weeks and is now on his way home. The school is highly successful under his oversight and direction, and we cannot wonder at that, for he is a cultivated, intelligent gentleman, of agreeable manners and excellent business ability. The next term of the Central State Normal will begin on Monday, the 31th inst.
